Both Mr. and Mrs. Chaffee were active members of the Congregational Church in Enfield, where they lived on the homestead built by Mr. Chaffee, who was a contractor and builder, and where their ten children were reared.

In 1856 Mr. Chaffee became one of the Board of Directors of the Strafford Western Emigration Company, which was organized with the object of forming a settlement in the West, and of carrying to it the religious and educational advantages of New England. Mr. Chaffee with others of the company went West in the summer of 1856 to investigate the country on the sunset side of the Mississippi and select a spot for settlement. To him fell the honor of discovering and pointing out to the company the beauties of the Zumbro River Valley, where they afterwards located and where now stands the town of Zumbrota. Worn out by the fatigues and hardships to which he was exposed in this Indian land, he was taken ill in Red Wing, where he died and was followed to his grave by a sorrowing procession of strangers. A few wild flowers were cast upon his coffin, prayer and benediction were said, and all was over. He was buried in Oak Wood Cemetery, Red Wing, on a bluff overlooking the village and the Mississippi. Soon after Mr. Chaffee's death his widow and children removed to Red Wing.

The following account of the settlement of Zumbrota is taken from a Red Wing paper:

"In fulfillment of my promise to furnish you some of my recollections of the early days in Goodhue county, I will devote the first article to the settlement of Zumbrota and to some of the incidents attending it.

"Up to the spring of 1856, that beautiful valley in Goodhue county through which the Zumbro river courses its way like a thread of silver, and in the center of which is now the thrifty village of Zumbrota, was known only to the hunter.

Not a path made by the foot of civilized man traversed its length or its breadth. The deer and the elk grazed on its virgin grass unmolested, while the musk-rat and the otter sported in the limpid waters of the little river undisturbed. The valley had been entirely overlooked. The old St. Paul and Dubuque stage road and also the road from Red Wing to Mantorville and other points to the southwest lay to the east of it, while on the west there was no road within several miles.

"In the spring of 1856 a backwoodsman by the name of Smith, a native of Canada, who the year before had settled in the big woods southwest of Pine Island, found himself on short rations. With rifle in hand, he started out in pursuit of wild game, which then abounded in the region. He extended his pursuits into the above-mentioned valley. Its beauty and topography suggested to his shrewd mind the idea that in the center of this valley was a favorable site for a town, and as townsites were springing into existence in every direction, he resolved to become the founder of a city. Having exhausted his own right of pre-emption in the woods, he found a single man by the name of Doty, who was willing to be sacrificed to gratify Smith's ambition. A claim was soon taken by Doty and in due time Smith at once entered with alacrity upon his new enterprise. He enlisted a merchant of Red Wing by the name of Gambia in the project, who took a claim adjoining Doty's. Smith had discovered that by straightening the Red Wing and Mantorville road, it would cross his proposed townsite and that the St. Paul and Dubuque road had already been surveyed across it.

"Smith had piloted now and then a settler on his way to or from Red Wing over his new route, for a road. In this manner a wagon trail was made over the prairie, which could easily be followed. Doty, aided by Smith, had hauled poplar logs some three miles, and was building a log cabin. While thus engaged, Doty and Smith observed a party of three men on foot approaching them from the south, along the wagon trail. As they came up to the cabin, they appeared weary, footsore and discouraged. They inquired the distance to Red Wing, and also to the nearest place where they could stay over night. They learned from Smith that the nearest cabin in the direction of Red Wing was four miles distant. It was late in the afternoon. The travelers were hungry and thirsty. Smith hastened to bring them some water from a spring near by, and set before them on a board in the open air such viands as his scanty larder afforded.

"Smith's inquisitive nature had soon drawn out of his guests the story of their now disconsolate journey. They were a committee of a colony of New England people, who had been seeking in vain for a local colony to settle. They were on their way to Red Wing, intending to take the first boat down the river and return to their homes in the east. Smith's opportunity had now come. His dream might be more than realized. He was entertaining angels (messengers) unawares. He at once informed them that the valley in which they now were was just the spot they had been looking for. With rude but earnest eloquence he expatiated on the advantages offered by the locality. There was an abundance of government land. The site was an ideal one for a town; there was a mill site on the river within a few rods of where they then were, etc., etc. But our travelers were disheartened; one of them was sick. They could not be induced to listen to Smith and took up their journey towards the Mississippi river, thinking only of joining their families once more in far off New England. The three persons described were Samuel Chaffee, Daniel Goddard and Joseph Bailey.

"As the little party had nearly reached the top of the ascent out of the valley, Samuel Chaffee, who was weak and sick, sat down to rest. He naturally turned his face toward the valley he had crossed with so much weariness and pain. The sun was just sinking behind the horizon, and its golden rays clothed the valley with a radiance and beauty akin to that of paradise. He was enamored of the scene. He called to his companions to come back and take a look at the valley. At first they refused, but finally consented.

"'Isn't that beautiful!' exclaimed Chaffee. For a moment his companions did not speak. Chaffee again exclaimed:

"'Why is not that just the spot we are seeking?'

"'It is handsome' ejaculated Bailey in a husky tone.

"'It is real porty' drawled out Goddard.

"'But we must hurry, or we shall never get to our stopping place before dark,' exclaimed Bailey and Goddard.

"In due time they arrived at the cabin where they were to stop over night, and talked of but little else than what pertained to their newly discovered land of promise, during that night and the next day.

"Upon their arrival at Red Wing they found several other members of the colony there to whom they reported their discovery with much enthusiasm.

"Poor Samuel Chaffee, whose illness had caused him to sit down and rest on the northern slope of the Zumbro valley and who thus had his attention called to the valley, took to his bed at the old Tepeetonka hotel in Red Wing, from which a few days afterwards he was borne to Oakwood cemetery, then almost inaccessible.

"It may not be uninteresting here to say that the Strafford Western Emigration company was only a small fragment of a large company organized the winter before in Massachusetts, but which went to pieces after an ineffectual effort by an incompetent and discordant committee to find a township of land on which to plant so large a colony. As a matter of fact, the committee of the original company, consisting of one hundred and sixty members, most of these heads of families, actually passed just below the valley where the smaller colony afterwards settled. Had they made the discovery which Chaffee and his party did, quite likely the great colony would have settled there."

1653 Joseph Manning [7] (" Manning ") Chaphe (Joseph,[6] Isaiah,[5] Joseph,[4] John,[3] Joseph,[2] Thomas [1]) was born in Adams, Mass., March 24, 1793, and died near Eaton, N. Y., October 29, 1868. He married (1) in Utica, N. Y., September 26, 1821, Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Grant of that place. She was born June 3, 1800, and died in Erieville, N. Y., October 13, 1832. Manning Chaphe married there (2), January 20, 1833, Susan, daughter of William and Abigail (Dill) Allen of Cazenovia, N. Y. [See Appendix G.] She was born September 17, 1805, and died November 1, 1844. Mr. Chaphe married (3) in Eaton, January 23, 1845, Caroline Malinda White, born in Salisbury, Conn., July 28, 1802, died in Eaton, April 14, 1884.

When Manning Chaphe was three years of age his parents moved from Adams to Warren, N. Y., where he lived for nine years. He used to tell how his grandfather White would take him out hunting, and let him carry the game. In 1805 his parents moved to Nelson, N. Y., and about four years later he accompanied his father on a visit to relatives in Wilbraham, Mass., and Enfield, Conn. He was a bright, good looking boy, and a great favorite with the family. At the age of eighteen when he was working on the turnpike then being built from Cazenovia to Smithfield, N. Y., he was felling trees and his knee was badly cut by his axe. The wound became dangerously inflamed, through cold, and amputation was necessary. Doctor White of Cherry Valley, a town some sixty miles away, and a surgeon of note in that part of the country, was summoned and performed a skillful operation, the wound healing rapidly. When health and strength returned Manning found employment tending a toll gate on the Skaneateles turnpike, but being ambitious for something better, after two years of toll-keeping he became a tailor. He could not stand the confinement of the bench, and in July, 1814, began work in the machine shop of Amos Rodgers in New Hartford, Oneida County, N. Y. Despite his crippled condition he was determined to succeed. The trade he had chosen was a hard one, necessitating his standing all day long, in great pain. For some time after commencing this work, he would return to his boarding place at night so exhausted that he thought he could never stand another day, but in the morning would awake refreshed and with courage and determination continue his work. To add to his troubles, a fellow boarder passed his evenings in playing on the violin, adding much to Manning's discomfort and preventing him from getting his rest. He never got over his dislike for violin music and on hearing it seldom failed to remark, "Some fool grinding away on the fiddle."

He worked for Mr. Rodgers until November, 1816, when the latter gave him a letter of recommendation to Mr. Northrup, agent of a nailing company in Oriskany, N. Y., of which a part was as follows:

"He is extremely steady at his work and trusty in business, is ingenious at taking new kinds of work. You will find him useful in your business and may expect him to be at work as many days in a month as any young man, for he is no rambler or idle person and he is of civil habits and good conversation."

He worked in Oriskany three years and in Cooperstown, N. Y., for fifteen months. From 1821 to 1826 he worked for the Oneida Manufacturing Society in Whitestown, N. Y., building cotton machinery. On leaving the company's employ he was given the following letter of recommendation:

Joseph M Chiesphe

HELIOTYPE PRINTING CO. BOSTON, MASS.

"WHITESTOWN, June 26th, 1827.

"The bearer Mr. Joseph M. Chaphe has been employed by the Oneida Manufacturing Society as a machinist for considerable time. He is a man of good moral character, is an excellent workman and faithful to his employers, he will give good satisfaction to those who may employ him.

"The last work he done for this Society (in connection with Mr. A. S. Sweet) was so well executed that the Trustees passed the following preamble and Resolution,—'Whereas in consideration of the faithful performance on the part of Messrs. Sweet and Chaphe in building the twelve carding machines in a superior manner it is the opinion of the Trustees that they should be allowed a compensation over and above the contract price,—therefore,—Resolved, that the Agent be and he is hereby authorized to pay the said Sweet and Chaphe the further sum of Twelve Dollars on each Carding Machine over and above the contract price.'

(Signed) "WM. WALCOTT, Agt. for the Oneida Mfg. Soc."

In 1824, during his residence in Whitestown, he bought land in Oriskany, for which he paid $1,000. In 1827 he went to work for Mr. Sweet in Auburn, N. Y., where he remained for a year; in 1828 and 1829 he was employed in New Hartford; from 1830 to 1832 he lived in Erieville, during part of this time being in the employ of Philo C. Curtis in Utica. In April, 1833, he bought a farm a mile and a half north of Morrisville, Madison County, N. Y. and turned his attention to farming. Here he lived until the autumn of 1854, when he removed to Eaton to remain until March, 1867, at which time he went to live with his daughter, Mrs. Short, in whose home on a farm near Eaton he died in the fall of 1868.

During his work as a machinist he helped build the machinery for the New York Mills factory and bought the first bolt of bleached muslin turned out by this company, taking the muslin home for family use.

When a young man he changed the spelling of his name from Chafee to Chaphe, at the suggestion of a minister, who said that the name should be spelled as it was pronounced. Many relatives and descendants have followed his example. He considered the most prominent events of his life to be his meeting with the Marquis de Lafayette, with whom he shook hands, on his visit to this country in 1824, his trip with Governor De Witt Clinton on a packet boat through the Erie Canal, on the completion of that waterway in 1825, and his two visits to New York City in 1865 and 1867, the summer of which latter year he spent with his son, Andrew J., in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Manning Chaphe had an ardent, sensitive and noble nature. In his work he was systematic and neat. He showed excellent judgment in all matters, was a well-informed man and absolutely self-made. He disliked vain show and boast of wealth, and was never known to call people by short or familiar names.

Mr. Chaphe had a sandy complexion, light blue eyes, and was five feet, seven inches in height. When he was three years old his parents moved to Nelson, N. Y., and later to Erieville. The first school he attended was in his father's barn. At the age of twelve he helped his father upon the farm and at blacksmithing during the summer months, attending school in winter. From fifteen to twenty-three years of age he was a brickmaker, and then learned the carpenter's trade. At the age of twenty-seven he learned the millwright's trade, which he followed for many years. After his marriage he lived in Erieville, his parents making their home with him. In 1846 he moved to Eaton, N. Y. Later he bought a farm in Illinois, upon which he intended to settle, but his wife's death changed his plans. In 1850 he purchased an interest in a saw and grist mill in Cazenovia, moving there. He subsequently owned and operated a cheese box factory and dealt in lumber. He was a public-spirited citizen, always interested in whatever would tend to improve the village. He was honorable in every particular, both in public and private life, charitable, benevolent, a great reader and devoted to his friends. He was a Republican in politics.

"Mr. Chaphe was a man of gentle, kindly disposition, 'with malice toward none, with charity for all,' and his life was an exemplification of unostentatious Christianity. His home life, as husband and father, was an especially happy one; and to the last he was watched over with loving care by his children until he passed peacefully away, to be gathered, like a sheaf of wheat fully ripe, into life everlasting."

In 1848 and 1849 Mr. Chaffee lived in West Virginia; he was of a cheerful disposition, and in his later life enjoyed fishing, swimming and playing games with the younger generations. He passed peacefully away while resting in his chair, as did his wife. He was in the grocery and bakery business, as well as being agent for the Masonic Insurance Company. His funeral was conducted by his Masonic lodge. The following obituary is from the Canton paper:

"John Chaffee died, at his home on East Locust street, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, after an illness of more than a year.

"Mr. Chaffee was born near Brooklyn, Conn., in the old Chaffee homestead built in 1781 by his grandfather, and occupied by successive generations for nearly a hundred years.

"In the year 1851 he left Connecticut and went west to Ohio. Here he met and married Miss Mary A. Fast. They came to Canton in 1861. In the year 1890 Mrs. Chaffee died. Seven children were born to them. All but one, who died in infancy, survive. They are Mrs. S. M. Baker, of Boulder, Colo.; Mrs. C. M. Snyder, of Galesburg; Mrs. W. O. Dean and Mrs. J. I. Leigh of Evanston; Charles J. Chaffee and Mrs. E. A. Heald, of Canton.

"Mr. Chaffee was engaged in business for a number of years, carrying on a grocery store and bakery, but retired because of failing health. He was a great sufferer, but rarely spoke of his health and was always inclined to look on the bright side of life. He passed the winters and summers with his daughters in Evanston, but clung to the old home where he had spent so many years, and it was there that he died.

"Few people appreciated friends more than he and he always welcomed them to his home with a genuine old-fashioned hospitality. He was a regular attendant at the Methodist Episcopal Church, rarely missing a sermon. He was an honored member of Morning Star lodge, A. F. and A. M., and also of the Eastern Star chapter, and was among the oldest members of these organizations, and faithful in attendance upon the meetings. He will be greatly missed."

1806 Lucian[7] Sharpe (Sarah Adams[6] Chaffee, Samuel,[5] Ebenezer,[4] John,[3] Joseph,[2] Thomas[1]) was born in Providence, R. I., March 20, 1830, and died at sea, October 17, 1899. He married in Smithfield, R. I., June 25, 1857, Louisa, daughter of Lewis and Mary Dexter of that place. She was born May 15, 1831. After Mr. Sharpe's death, his heirs carried out his intentions with regard to the endowment fund of Brown University, by contributing $10,000 to it.

The following obituary is from a Providence paper:

"Lucian Sharpe died of Bright's disease on board the North German Lloyd steamer Saale. Mr. Sharpe was a very sick man when he started to return home, being carried aboard the ship by two attendants in a steamer chair and requiring the services of nurses, some of whom accompanied him on the voyage home. Everything possible was done for his comfort, but without avail.

"When he was seven years of age he went to live with his uncle, Pitt Sharpe, on the homestead in Pomfret, Conn. In the spring of 1840 Mr. Sharpe's father purchased a farm in Hartwick, Otsego county, New York, and for two years the family resided there. Afterward the farm was sold, but for two years Mr. Sharpe attended school at Hartwick Seminary. In 1844 he returned to Providence and entered the Elm street grammar school, afterward attending the Providence High School for two years. He inherited the business instincts of his father and also his strong physical and mental endowments. To these he added a talent for business and the power to execute its requirements. In his early manhood he evinced an appreciation of all improvement in mechanical devices, a faculty which later proved useful to him. He served a five years' apprenticeship with Joseph R. Brown, and in 1853 a partnership was formed under the name of J. R. Browne & Sharpe. At that time about 14 men were employed. The business steadily increased, and in 1858 a contract was made with the Wilcox & Gibbs Sewing Machine Company to manufacture all their machines. In 1866 the fine scale and measurement business of J. R. Brown & Sharpe was united with that conducted by Samuel Darling of Bangor, Me., under the corporate name of Darling, Brown & Sharpe. The Brown & Sharpe Manufacturing Co. and Darling, Brown & Sharpe ran along separately, yet under the same roof, till Mr. Darling's death, Jan. 1, 1897, when the latter firm was absorbed. Mr. Sharpe filled a number of important positions other than those in the business with which he was connected. He was a director in the Wilcox & Gibbs Sewing Machine Company of New York; trustee of the Providence Institution for Savings, and at the time of his death its Vice President; from 1879 to 1891 he was a director in the National Bank of North America, and had served in a similar capacity since 1897 in the Rhode Island Hospital Trust Company. For some years he was Vice President of the Union Railroad Company; in 1883 he was made director in the Providence Gas Company, and had been President of the Providence Journal Company since 1886.

"Of strict business integrity and a careful worker himself, he endeavored in every possible way to aid those in his employ to better themselves and to add to their efficiency as workmen. He established a shop library containing about 2000 volumes and inaugurated a movement whereby the apprentices might have an association, with meetings in working hours, in which lectures could be held and the benefit of mutual improvement enjoyed.

"He possessed habits of unusually close observation, in consequence of which he was full of wise suggestions in regard to improvements in tools and their manufacture. During the 50 years of his connection with the company the workshops increased in area from 1800 square feet to 283,000 square feet and the number of employés from 14 men to a working force of 1500.

"Mr. Sharpe made frequent trips to Europe and was well known in London and Paris. The machinery of his firm has a world-wide reputation.

1818 Daniel Dwight[7] Chaffee (Luther,[6] Samuel,[5] Ebenezer,[4] John,[3] Joseph,[2] Thomas[1]) was born in Orwell, Pa., October 21, 1819, and died in Camptown, Pa., January 3, 1889. He married, October 22, 1845, Eliza D., daughter of William Camp of Camptown, who survived him. He was a great lover of children, with whom he easily made friends. He was buried in Camptown. The following obituary is from a local paper:

"Early in life Mr. Chaffee learned the carpenter's trade, and for some time before reaching his majority he worked in Towanda in Mackinson's turning shop. In 1842 he worked at his trade in Herrick. While there he formed the acquaintance of Miss Eliza D. Camp of Camptown, to whom he was married in 1845. The union was a happy one, and she who is now left to mourn speaks of her departed companion as a kind and considerate husband. Five children were born to them,—three daughters and two sons, all of whom are living. One daughter, Mrs. G. R. Stone, resides in California; another, Mrs. C. L. Avery, lives in Penfield in this State; while the third daughter, Miss Leora, the youngest child of the family, lives with her mother. Both sons, Clarence and William L., reside in Camptown. About a year after marriage Mr. Chaffee settled in Camptown, where he spent the remainder of his life. He was for years an undertaker and furniture dealer, which gave him a wide acquaintance. In his more than forty years of business life in this vicinity he established for himself a reputation for promptness and integrity which is of itself a worthy monument to his memory. As a funeral director he had no superior. Upon occasions requiring kindness and patience he showed himself possessed of these qualities, and every act was in perfect harmony with the order and solemnity of the service. As a citizen he was public spirited and charitable. He was ready for any public enterprise, and would put his hand to any needed improvement. In his home, in business, on the street, wherever met he was cheerful and obliging. He greatly loved his home, was proud of his children, and aimed to do for them the very best he possibly could. He loved good books, and was a great lover of nature. Trees and flowers, hills and streams, in fact everything beautiful or sublime attracted his attention, and drew from him expressions of admiration. He was not a member of any church but believed in God, and did not leave his friends to mourn without hope, but assured them that he believed God would not forsake him. Possessed of a faculty for ready discrimination he knew the genuine, and distinguished it from sham in men and things. Deceit he despised, and with like readiness he recognized and commended the true. So his views of religion carried him beyond words and mere professions, to deeds and practical fruits. He was a valuable man to his home and to the community, and will be greatly missed in the larger, as well as in the smaller circle."

About 1835 he moved to Brookville, Ind., where a small farm two miles north of the town was cleared and where his children grew up. He ran into debt and in 1849 went to the California gold fields, where he remained about two years, returning home with sufficient money to pay his indebtedness and have a balance left for the comfort of his family. Later he made a laborious trip to Pike's Peak. At the outbreak of the Civil War he enlisted and was accepted, despite his advanced age. Owing to ill health, however, he served but a few months. After his second marriage he removed to Tama City, where he was living at the time of his death. He was a tanner and farmer. At one time he owned land in Marcellus, N. "Wm. Chaffee, father of E. F. Chaffee, came from Brookfield, Mass., in the autumn of 1817, and settled in Attica, then Genesee county, N. Y., where in a log house Edward Franklin Chaffee was born. He is the seventh of ten children. His education, with the exception of one term at a select school, was received in the common school and in the chimney corner by the light of a wood fire. In the autumn of 1840 he commenced teaching school at Bennington Centre, in a primitive schoolhouse, with side boards for writing desks and long slabs with bracing legs for seats. He received fourteen dollars per month with the privilege of boarding with the inhabitants and taught seventy-five pupils. He might be considered successful in this vocation, as he taught twenty-two years in Attica and vicinity, the last two terms in the Attica Union school. In 1844 he taught at North Java, where he cast for Henry Clay, his first Presidential vote. To make up for the small pay for teaching 123 pupils, as he went 'boarding round' he became acquainted with Miss Harriett E. Jones, born in Herefordshire, Eng., whose grand uncle, Sir Hungerford Hold, an officer in the British army, was killed at the battle of Bunker Hill, while another grand uncle, Wm. Floyd, was a signer of the Declaration of Independence. In the autumn of 1863 Mr. Chaffee was elected School Commissioner of the First District of Wyoming county, and held that office six years. He issued a call for a County Teachers' Association in 1861, which is now one of the most prosperous in the state. In 1867, through his labor, the school of Attica village was made a free school under an act of the Legislature. His life work has ever been to encourage the education of the masses and his cheerful disposition has rendered him apt in that relation. He has held several town offices, and being a friend of the poor has been entrusted for many years with funds to be expended for their comfort. His purpose is to do right regardless of cost. In the spring of 1830 he became a member of the First Baptist church and has contributed liberally to its support and also for worthy objects. He has for over twenty years been a Sunday school superintendent and has compiled the history of that church, which was organized Aug. 21st. 1806. He is an advocate of temperance and sobriety. He has made several trips into the Western States; the first was soon after the Black Hawk war, when there was neither wharf nor pier at Milwaukee, and Chicago was but a small village, the approach to which was by a pier built out into the lake. He has for several years contributed to the press, and now, surrounded with pleasant associations at the eve of life, besides superintending his valuable farm in the rich and beautiful valley of the Tonawanda, devotes a part of his time to writing stories, historical sketches, reminiscences, biographies, etc., for the Attica News."

The following is from a local paper:

"Charles Chaffee was born in Greene county, N. Y., November 28, 1813. He came to Hornbrook, Pa., in 1840, where he made his permanent home. He was united in marriage in 1842 to Adeline Horton who survives him. Of the six children given them, the daughter died in infancy, and one son at the age of about twelve years. Four sons remain, two in Bradford county and two in the West.

"He was a man of great strength of mind and body, and amassed a fortune by his industry and perseverance. He joined the M. E. society in 1861 and was its most generous supporter. He entered into church work with his characteristic energy. The society was small and weak at that time, and could scarcely have been kept up but for his liberality. A church was soon built and he then took upon himself the work of a sexton which he continued with untiring faithfulness for years, gratuitously. He was also the Superintendent of the Sunday school, sustaining it almost, if not entirely, at his own expense; providing Bibles, etc., for those who did not have them. His home was the itinerant's home, and many are they who have pleasant memories of the kindness and help received at his hands. He had been suffering for several months, but kept up with indomitable courage and will. His mind was clear to the last. He arranged everything to his satisfaction and said, 'All is well, I must go.' And so surrounded by loved and loving ones, he passed from among us."

2094 Charles Elmer[7] Chaffee (Freeborn Moulton,[6] Chadwick,[5] James,[4] Joseph,[3] Joseph,[2] Thomas[1]) was born in Monson, Mass., June 30, 1818, and died in Windsor Locks, Conn., November 2, 1907. He married in Somers, Conn., May 15, 1839, Abilena, daughter of Cyrus Dunbar. At that time both Mr. Chaffee and his bride were of Monson.

"At the age of 20 years he removed to Rockville, Conn., where he entered the employ of George Kellogg, remaining with him thro' a period of five years. He then returned to Monson, engaging in the factory of Joseph Reynolds as a sorter of wool. For twenty-five years, in fact, he worked at the board as a sorter, becoming one of the most successful experts in that line of business. After three years in Mr. Reynolds' employ he removed to Thompsonville in this state, and has since been an honored resident of Connecticut. Mr. Chaffee spent seventeen years at Thompsonville, devoting himself with great assiduity to the vocation which he had selected. Associated with him in the Enfield company by which he was employed was the late W. G. Medlicott, the founder of the Medlicott company at Windsor Locks. When Mr. Medlicott established his company in 1863 he availed himself of the services of Mr. Chaffee, who removed from Thompsonville to his present place of residence, where he has since lived. He was connected with the company until Mr. Medlicott's failure in 1876. Mr. Chaffee's knowledge of the business and judgment were such that he was selected as assignee. A satisfactory settlement was effected, and the business was resumed, with Mr. Chaffee as treasurer, he being still the incumbent of the position. He was also the president of the company for a number of years, and the management of its affairs rested in his hands. The twenty-five years which President Chaffee spent at the bench as a sorter of wool afforded him an experience of the greatest value as a manufacturer of woolen goods. He was one of the most successful buyers of wool in the state, and his advantage in that direction was due principally to the long period of application and industry by which his early years were signalized.

"Mr. Chaffee was the vice-president and one of the directors of the Windsor Locks bank, and a member of the board of directors of the Mercantile National Bank of Hartford. Was also president and a member of the board of directors of the Windsor Locks and Warehouse Point Bridge and Ferry Company. He held the office of first selectman at Windsor Locks through several terms, and was a member of the board of assessors. Mr. Chaffee was long a member of the Congregational church, in which he was honored with places of great trust and responsiblity; a member of the church committee and society's committee for many years. When a young man in Monson he was associated with the old state militia service. His golden wedding was celebrated May 15, 1889. The two were old-time school mates, and the love of more than half a century ago was most radiantly exemplified in the union of heart and life that existed between them. Shadows crossed their way, three children having died along life's journey; but an adopted daughter took the place of the lost in their lives, making the home one of hope and light. The life of Mr. Chaffee was one of superb consecration to duty, and no greater treasure can be left with the community in which he lived so long than the example which he impressed upon all classes of men. It is a legacy of priceless value. As a christian in the community and the manager of great industrial and financial interests, his career has been in every way an honor to American manhood.

"His honorable and successful life is an example of what industry, fidelity to duty, temperance, economy, and probity will do, not only toward the achievement of material success, but toward the upbuilding of that character which is at the end the best monument to a man's memory, and the most precious legacy to his children."

In the Fall of 1889 Mr. Chaffee gave $15,000 for a memorial building for the Windsor Locks Grand Army Post.

At the time of his death Mr. Chaffee was still connected with the Medlicott Company as President, and lived in Windsor Locks.

2297 Robert Alexander[8] Chafee (Otis Jacob,[7] Otis,[6] Amos,[5] Thomas,[4] Thomas,[3] Nathaniel,[2] Thomas[1]) was born in Charleston, S. C., November 19, 1855, and died in Aiken, S. C., December 14, 1892. He married there, October 23, 1879, Ida Black, daughter of William John Williams of that place. She is a member of the Episcopal Church. Mr. Chafee was a cotton buyer and railroad contractor and was at the time of his death Mayor of Aiken. He had a fair complexion, blue eyes, and was five feet, eleven and one-half inches in height. The following biographical sketch was published in the Aiken Journal and Review of October 26, 1892:

"Robert A. Chafee, Mayor of Aiken, and now filling his second term in that capacity, was born in Charleston, S. C., thirty-seven years ago, one of the seven sons of Otis J. Chafee, a great merchant of that city in the olden time. The subject of this sketch went to Augusta in 1874, where for five years he engaged in the cotton business. Then he settled in Madison, whence two years later, his health having been greatly impaired by a siege of typhoid fever, he came to Aiken for recovery in 1882. On his return to health a broad field, both in public and private affairs, appeared to present itself for his manifest energies, and it was not long ere he was elected to the City Council, where he served two terms marked by alertness, vigilance and originality. But not until Mr. Chafee was elected Mayor seemed he fully armed and warranted for results he must long have contemplated and coveted in behalf of the city's furtherance. In 1890, as Mayor, he immediately set out upon an official career which continues to be remarkable for varied and desirable results for the community. Truth to tell, some of his best achievements, however, notwithstanding the popularity of his projects, have been won unassisted if not at times despite a certain opposition or discouragement. Three thousand seven hundred feet of tile piping have been laid about Aiken under his supervision, thus supplementing the natural drainage and making the two combined the best in the country. Five miles of solid clay supersurface, level and hard, make the highways diverging from the city unsurpassable, while within its limits the streets, lanes, avenues, parks, sidewalks, etc., would be fit patterns for many pretentious corporations already boastful of their thoroughfares. To him, too, is due the admirable system of electric lighting the result of which is to enliven and beautify the city by night with an illumination superior to that of many places where the electric system prevails. The dynamo power for the Aiken circuit is obtained eight miles from the city. A new and complete water-works system now under contract for prompt construction, the supply to equal 1,500,000 gallons daily, to be served through seven miles of main pipe into a storage reservoir 160 feet above the city's summit—this may be said to appropriately close the list of Mayor Chafee's more extensive and costly public improvements; but it does not by any means exhaust his versatile activities in many other directions. For several years several old-style bridges spanned the deep railway cut that divides the city near its centre. These, being low and in nowise secure, menaced the lives of those crossing above and proved more than once fatal to the trainmen who passed below. Mayor Chafee personally urged attention to the matter on the Legislature, the outcome being that a strong, modern, elevated truss bridge spans one point and the old structures are all to go by next April. He recently had removed bodily the well known Oakley house, in which he, with Mrs. Chafee and their two interesting daughters, are soon to dwell. No plastering was cracked nor were the chimneys affected by the removal. Mr. Chafee married Miss Ida B. Williams of Aiken, thirteen years ago. The family at present reside on Boulevard Coles. In brief, Mr. Chafee is everywhere regarded as a plucky, public spirited official and a model Mayor whose honors, having been thoroughly well won, are as thoroughly well worn."

In the midst of this career of civic usefulness and success and in the prime of life, Mayor Chafee was cut off by the hand of a murderer. On December 12, 1892, while he and his Chief of Police were attempting to arrest Colonel Thomas G. Lamar, who was intoxicated, he was shot by the latter and died two days later. The funeral took place on December 15th at half past four o'clock. All the stores were closed and business of all kinds was suspended from twelve o'clock until after the services, the government in Washington ordering the Post Office to be closed also. The funeral was largely attended, many who wished to do so not being able to get into the church. The remains were interred in the Episcopal Cemetery.

A special meeting of the Council and a mass meeting of citizens was held in the City Hall to take suitable action on the death of Mayor Chafee and the following resolutions were passed.

"Whereas it has pleased God, in his all wise providence to remove from our midst the honored Mayor of the city of Aiken, R. A. Chafee;

"Now therefore be it resolved, by the city council of Aiken in meeting assembled, and the citizens of Aiken in mass meeting assembled with this council; that in the sad and sudden death of Mayor R. A. Chafee, this entire community has received a severe loss and terrible shock. Young, manly, vigorous and progressive; cheerful and energetic, he made a good mayor and was a public spirited citizen. And we gladly bear testimony to the faithful discharge of his official duties, and the more than faithful attention to the best interests of the town. That a copy of these resolutions be spread on the minutes of the council, and be engrossed at the expense of the council, sealed with the seal of the corporation, and signed by the clerk and sent to Mrs. Chafee. That a blank page on the minutes of the council with the proper inscription be inscribed to the memory of Mayor Chafee.

"That the fire bell of the town be tolled at the time of the funeral."

He suggested the establishment of departments for savings by the Trust Companies of Providence. At times his business activities have been restricted by continued ill health. 2392 William Henry [8] Baldwin, Jr. (Mary Frances Augusta [7] Chaffee, Jonathan,[6] Stephen,[5] Thomas,[4] Thomas,[3] Nathaniel,[2] Thomas [1]), was born in Boston, Mass., February 5, 1863, and died in Locust Valley, N. Y., January 3, 1905. He married in Springfield, Mass., October 30, 1889, Ruth Standish, daughter of Samuel Bowles of that place (who was for many years the editor of the Springfield Republican). Mrs. Baldwin was graduated from Smith College in 1887, and afterwards pursued special studies there; the year before her marriage she was an instructor in the college and private secretary to its President, L. C. Seelye. She survives her husband and lives with her children in New York City. Mr. Baldwin was a member of the Unitarian Church. He attained a position of much prominence and importance in the business world, though he died while still a young man. Under the heading "A Great Leader of Men," the Boston Transcript printed a tribute to his memory, portions of which we quote:

"The death of William H. Baldwin, Jr., terminates one of the most remarkably successful careers ever achieved by a young man in a land noted for its self-made men. There is published in this city a 'Directory of Directors,' a sort of financial 'Who's Who,' a list of the men who fill directors' chairs in the railroads, the trust companies, the banks and the industrial trusts. This Directory is arranged alphabetically, giving the name of the man, and, below, a list of the corporations in which he is an officer. The book includes every man of sufficient importance to to have a director's voice in any one of the great corporations whose interests centre in Wall Street. To give a list of the score of names that are followed by the greatest number of corporations would be to name the little group of men who actually control, who compose the active, working, moving force of high finance and industry in the United States. On this list is Mr. Baldwin's name.

"He began life without one cent of inherited wealth. He was not on those directorates because he had money, nor because he had relatives who had money. He was there, it is no exaggeration to say, because he was looked upon as possessing, more than any other man in the world of high finance, the sound judgment, the sterling integrity, the thorough common sense and the experience in affairs, the breadth of mind and length of vision which go to make up the ability to manage in the best manner the most important finanical and industrial corporations in America.

"Mr. Baldwin was either a president or a director in over 41 corporations.

"In 1886 he was graduating at Harvard College. Less than eighteen years ago—how incredibly brief it seems for such a record of achievement—he was beginning his career without one iota of influence, just as the humblest and most obscure member of last year's class may be beginning it today, as a clerk in the freight department of the Union Pacific Railroad at Omaha.

"For just one and only one bit of good fortune might Mr. Baldwin have thanked any man outside himself. He had the great good luck to be put in exactly the right place at the start. He was not compelled, as most youths are, to trust to his own judgment of his natural bent. And for this bit of good fortune, for the heaven-directed office of bringing the man and the opportunity together, Mr. Baldwin had to thank that man who is perhaps best fitted in America to gauge a youth's qualities and see where he belongs—President Eliot of Harvard. At that time, Mr. Charles Francis Adams had the same intimate relation that he still holds to Harvard. He was also president of the Union Pacific Railroad. 'I was then,' Mr. Adams has been quoted as saying, 'president of the Union Pacific. President Eliot of Harvard first called my attention to young Baldwin, then recently graduated. He said that he considered him a good man for the railroad business. We were always looking for first-class young men, so I found a place for him with the Union Pacific.'

"Doubtless that executive capacity which President Eliot noticed had been exhibited in young Baldwin's office as president of the Harvard Dining Association, the student body which manages the feeding of 1100 men at Memorial Hall—no small responsibility for a youth of college age. Baldwin was also leader of the Glee Club during his college course. At the end of it he entered the Law School, but after being there only a few months the chance to do railroad work came to him and he accepted it.

"He spent but a short time in demonstrating his energy and his capacity for responsibility. While he was still at an age when most young men are in very inferior and subordinate positions, he was sent to Butte, Mont., as general manager of the Montana Union Railroad; he was then called back to Omaha as assistant to the general manager of the entire Union Pacific system. In the spring of 1891, when the Union Pacific left the hands of its former owners to pass into the control of the Goulds, Mr. Baldwin left it. Already an active figure in railroad circles, he was called to the office of general manager of the Flint & Père Marquette. In this position his work attracted the attention of the Morgan interests, and when that house undertook the reorganization of the Southern Railroad system, Mr. Baldwin, then but thirty years old, was called upon to do the active work of rejuvenating the road physically, and coördinating its loose-hanging parts. The conduct of the road before this event had been notorious. It was said at the time that the property 'had for years been scrimped and mismanaged to pay unearned dividends. Mr. Baldwin had to coalesce the various elements in what had been a loosely held system, formulate and carry into effect uniformity in every department of the service and practically rebuild a large part of the system. What he had to contend with and overcome may be appreciated when it is stated that there did not exist a repair shop on the whole line between Washington and Atlanta, and to turn the tire of a driving-wheel the engine had to travel six hundred miles. The transformation accomplished on the Southern Railroad during the first two years of its history was unparalleled in railroad management.' Two years later Mr. Baldwin was again sought for the task of bringing order out of the wreck of a mismanaged railroad. It is well known that the Long Island Railroad system had been 'milked' by the previous management, that its physical condition was wretched and that its service was an irritation to every resident along the line. Mr. Baldwin spent the first weeks of his presidency in going slowly over every yard of the line with a huge notebook in hand, marking down the repairs and changes to be made. What he effected in the way of increased satisfaction alike to the patrons of the road and to the shareholders would be an interesting story if it were not too long to tell here. Subsequently he promoted the union of the Long Island and the Pennsylvania; and the stupendous engineering feat of connecting the two systems by tunnels under the North and East rivers and under Manhattan Island is generally credited to him, as his original conception. When the time came for the actual beginning of this work, he was chosen for the general oversight of it. Indeed, the direction of this enormous work had been his chief care in recent years.

"This is all a record of material achievement. It leaves out of account Mr. Baldwin's work as a reformer and philanthropist. The striking thing about Mr. Baldwin's record is that he was an original thinker, that his discernment and insight taught him the needs of certain portions of America, that his far vision suggested to him a cure, and that he had, with militant energy, gone about originating and bringing into being the means of cure. Some months ago a complimentary dinner to Mr. Baldwin was given by the executive officers of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, and the outside of the menu card was inscribed 'To Our Best Friend.' This was a significant tribute. It indicates what is the truth, that those most intimate with the work of Tuskegee recognized Mr. Baldwin as, in a sense, the discoverer of Booker Washington and as the most efficient impulse behind the movement which Mr. Washington represents.

"He once expressed it himself in a speech to a company of Southerners: 'My views regarding the education of the Negro are exactly those that are held in the South. For the Negro, I think that the best education is that which is given by Booker Washington at Tuskegee. I think the Negroes should be taught to work—to work at the trades and in the fields. A common-school education along with their trades is not only unharmful, but likely to be a great benefit to their employers and their neighbors. As for Greek, Latin and the higher steps in education, they are worthless so far as the Negro is concerned.'

"Having given the tremendous impulse of his personality to the work at Tuskegee, Mr. Baldwin turned his attention to the education of the Southern whites. He was the chairman of the General Educational Board, an organization of men who have the insight to know, and the disposition and means to give to the educational needs of the South.

"Mr. Baldwin was best known to the public as chairman of the Reform Committee of Fifteen, which, in connection with Mr. Jerome, awakened the city [New York] and brought about the election of Mayor Low in 1901.

"This record, remarkable as it is, leaves out of the count the distinction which Mr. Baldwin held among railroad men, among large employers of capital and among labor leaders—a distinction generally unknown to the public. Mr. Baldwin was held to be the most clear-headed, the most just, the most practical and the most effective settler of labor disputes in this country. It is one of the secrets of the more intimate circles of labor leaders and large employers that during every great strike of recent years Mr. Baldwin's advice had been sought to settle the vexed problems involved, and in some of the greatest of these strikes, although his name was never publicly mentioned, he was the principal agent in terminating the trouble. It would cause misconception to call him a 'strike breaker.' It was one of the elements of his success that he kept in mind the point of view of the laborer as well as of the employer, and without any weak yielding, using unflinching firmness whenever it is necessary, he ended the trouble by amicable adjustment rather than by any exertion of force which leaves bitterness on both sides.

"Mr. Baldwin reached this unique ability through an abundance of experience. He fought the rioters on the Union Pacific in 1889 and slept on frontier station floors with a rifle by his side. Again, while general manager and vice president of the Southern Railway, he averted what threatened to be one of the greatest strikes in railroad history. One of the means used to express the fairness of his position to the strikers was the compilation of a pamphlet which dealt with the whole question and was mailed to every employee of the road."

"The death of William H. Baldwin, Jr., of New York is a national loss. Few men dying at the comparatively early age of forty-one take so much out of the higher activities and richer life of their time as has passed with him. The brief period of eighteen years was the span of his active career, as we speak of the time in men's lives that follows their educational preparation, but they were years of splendid achievement in which qualities of early promise developed and expanded into most gratifying fulfilment, both in character and in service. In another part of this paper the evidences of this fact are given at considerable length, but the full record is something that none but himself completely knew, something that the most appreciative tributes can but inadequately express. His executive ability was of the highest order and in the line of work which he selected he was continually being called to higher and still higher service and responsibility. But the most notable trait of his character was that he did not prize these talents simply as a means of acquiring wealth or securing personal advancement, but held them as a trust to be employed for the benefit of his generation. His aim was always constructive, but never to build himself or his enterprises up by pulling others down. He became interested not alone in the material possibilities of the communities and sections with which his manifold labors identified him, but with the human beings with whom these labors brought him in contact, their bodies and souls, their mental and material welfare. His public spirit, his broad and comprehensive philanthropy were inherited qualities made strong and vital by excellent training and constant exercise. Though in his productive manhood his lot was cast elsewhere, it is a satisfaction to remember that he was a son of Boston and possessed and reflected some of the noblest and most admirable of New England qualities. With rare business ability was joined integrity that was above suspicion, while through it all ran a beautiful spirit of altruism that expressed itself in good works for his fellowmen."

The following account of the funeral is from a Boston paper:

"A funeral service was held in the cemetery chapel at Forest Hills, Jamaica Plain, Mass., in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives. It was conducted by Rev. Dr. Samuel A. Eliot, president of the American Unitarian association, assisted by Rev. Charles D. Billings of Lowell, a brother-in-law of Mr. Baldwin. Dr. Eliot pronounced a eulogy, saying in part:

"'No single voice can explain the depth of feeling that has drawn this company together. We are here to testify to the influence which this brave, cheerful, tender-hearted, loving and high-minded man has had upon our lives. If it were possible for each one of us to utter in some single sentence the reason of our love for him there would be added to our presence the fitting memorial word. From the world of business, where his ability and integrity won quick respect and absolute confidence; from the public service, wherein his capacity for self-effacing leadership was so remarkable; from the personal relationship of life, where his genius for friendship and buoyancy of spirits brought good cheer, there would come up in all the simplicity of a heartfelt grief, his worthiest eulogy. How his very physical presence inspired our confidence, how his abundant nature enriched us! We caught the contagion of his optimism, we grew more generous in contact with his radiating good will. All our little meannesses and prejudices vanished when they touched his magnificent manliness.

"'Evil spirits could not bear the light of his sunny soul. He inherited a keen sense of moral obligation. This was a quality that gave a cleanness to his speech, firmness to his decisions. There were never more than two ways of doing things—one the right, the other the wrong. He knew nothing of circuitous methods. He did not deal in smooth compromises. He never knew what it was to be timid or complacent. He never let the right wait on the expedient. He never trimmed, he never posed. He went straight to his point. He could not but be aware of the admiration he created, but he never lost his sense of right proportions. He had physical courage and the greater virtue of moral courage. He held himself in natural friendly intercourse with all sorts and conditions of men. He had the large manly common sense which we Americans demand of those we hold representative. He had a commanding personality, and we caught from him much that has been beneficial to us all. His life has been a lesson to us, and we should seek to become more worthy of his friendship and not forget his great example.'

"In the course of morning prayers at Harvard university Wednesday, Rev. Francis G. Peabody contributed a few words of testimony to the life of the late Mr. Baldwin. He took for a text Isaiah xxxii: 2, 'A man shall be as an hiding place from the wind, and a covert from the tempest, as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land.' He said in part: 'He died of a lingering and obscure disease, at the age of 41; too soon, it seems to a host of friends, but not too soon to demonstrate what one plain, democratic, absolutely upright and thoroughly trained man can do and be in a nation like ours. The spirit of idealism bred here was set to work in the world, and the world—which often seems to give its prizes to trickery and greed—gave its obedience and loyalty to this young Harvard man whom it could absolutely trust.'

"President Jesup formally announced the death of William H. Baldwin, Jr., at the monthly meeting of the New York Chamber of Commerce yesterday, and recalled the fact that Mr. Baldwin had served the city and the chamber as the chairman of the Committee of Fifteen. Jacob H. Schiff asked permission to pay a tribute of respect to the memory of Mr. Baldwin and the work he had done on the Committee of Fifteen. He said that when the matter of chairman for that committee came up there was some doubt as to whether Mr. Baldwin would accept the office, since it might interfere with his duties as president of the Long Island Railroad. Mr. Schiff said that Mr. Baldwin declared that he would accept the position, even if it became necessary for him to resign the presidency of the railroad. Mr. Baldwin said at the time, according to Mr. Schiff: 'I shall always be able to earn a living for myself and family, but I shall never have another opportunity, perhaps, to serve my city in this way.' 'But for him,' said Mr. Schiff, 'I do not believe our city would be as good as I believe it is to-day.'"

When the Civil War broke out he enlisted in Warren, O., July 22, 1861, as a Private in the regular army, Company K, 6th Cavalry, which regiment had just been organized, and which, as the advance guard, was to lead the army of the Potomac under McClellan from Yorktown up the Peninsula to the battlefields around Richmond. upon duty as Inspector General for a period of four years, at the Headquarters of General Alexander McD. McCook, commanding the Department of Arizona, Los Angeles, Cal. The headquarters were transferred to Denver, Colo., in July, 1893, and on being relieved from duty as Inspector General, in October, 1894, he rejoined his regiment, stationed at Fort Robinson, Neb., and served thereat until August, 1896, when he reported as instructor of Cavalry at the Infantry and Cavalry School at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. He was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel, 3rd Cavalry, June 1, 1897. He was relieved as Instructor at the Infantry and Cavalry School, Fort Riley, Kan., in August, 1897. On the outbreak of the war with Spain, operations were suspended at all the service schools, the army being quickly assembled at points in the southern states for embarkation to Cuba. Lieutenant-Colonel Chaffee joined his regiment at Chicamauga Park, Ga., April 2, 1898, and on May 4th he was appointed Brigadier-General of Volunteers. He was ordered to report for duty to Major-General Shafter, commanding the 5th Army Corps, at Tampa, Fla., and after some temporary assignments he was given command of the 3d Brigade, 2d Division, composed of the 7th, 12th and 17th regiments of Infantry. The troops composing this Brigade were first of the Fifth Corps to go aboard ship at Port Tampa, and loaded three ships, Cherokee, Iroquois and D. H. Miller. The Second Division, General Lawton commanding, landed at Banquiri, on the south coast of Cuba, about twenty-five miles east of Santiago, June 21, 1898, and led in the march to that city. General Chaffee received the highest praise for the reconnoissance he made previous to the Battle of El Caney. Of all the experienced officers in authority during this time, he was the only one who saw and acted upon the necessity of reconnoitering. Captain Arthur H. Lee, British Military Attaché, who was sent over by his Government to view the Cuban campaign, spoke of this as follows:

"The strong post had been carefully reconnoitered by Brigadier-General Chaffee in person on June 28th and 29th, and he had submitted a plan of attack which was carried out almost to the letter.

"I feel it only just at this point to mention that however novel the absence of reconnoissance in other directions, nothing could have been more enterprising or systematic than General Chaffee's explorations of his own field of operations. I had the pleasure of accompanying him on more than one occasion, and derived much profit from a study of his methods.

"Leaving his staff behind, he would push far to the front, and finally, dismounting, slip through the brush with the rapidity and noiselessness of an Indian. . . . On one occasion we approached so close to the Spanish pickets that we could hear the men talking over their suppers, and until I began to speculate on the probable efficacy of the British passport that was my sole defensive weapon. In this silent Indian fashion General Chaffee explored the entire district, and was the only man in the Army to whom the network of bridle-paths around El Caney was in any sense familiar."

Senator Lodge in his book on the Cuban campaign says on this point:

"There does not appear to have been any reconnoitering done at all except by General Chaffee, who, with the skill and coolness of an experienced Indian fighter, explored the ground in front of his command thoroughly, even to the Spanish lines at El Caney."

It is said that the only map of the locality in the possession of the general commanding the American forces was one drawn by General Chaffee from his personal observations.

General Chaffee's brigade attacked the strong Spanish position of El Caney at half past seven o'clock on the morning of July 1st. The enemy, about eight hundred to a thousand strong, were posted in six blockhouses, and in the buildings of the town, which were constructed of brick and stone, the walls prepared for fire by infantry. General Lawton's Brigade also assisted in the attack, but the brunt of the fighting fell on that of General Chaffee. After eight hours of fighting the Spanish troops were thoroughly defeated and the town taken. The killed and wounded of General Chaffee's Brigade, the Third, exceeded ten per cent of its strength. The Spanish forces at and in the vicinity of Santiago surrendered July 17th. Many incidents are related of General Chaffee during this battle. One, by Colonel Lee, is as follows:

"Wishing to see how they (the 7th Infantry) were faring I crawled through the hedge into the field beyond, and incidentally into such a hot corner that I readily complied with Gen. Chaffee's abrupt injunction, 'Get down on your stomach, sir.' Indeed I was distinctly grateful for his advice, but could not fail to notice that he was regardless of it himself. Wherever the fire was thickest he strolled about unconcernedly, a half-smoked cigar between his teeth, and an expression of exceeding grimness on his face. The situation was a trying one for the nerves of the oldest soldier, and some of the younger hands fell back from the firing-line and crept toward the road. In a moment the General pounced upon them, inquiring their destination in low, unhonied accents, and then taking them persuasively by the elbow, led them back to the extreme front, and having deposited them in the firing line stood over them while he distributed a few last words of pungent and sulphurous advice. Throughout the day he set the most inspiring example to his men, and that he escaped unhurt was a miracle. One bullet clipped a button off his coat, another passed under his shoulder strap, but neither touched him and there must be some truth in the old adage that fortune favors the brave."

Another is as follows:

"General Chaffee saw one of his soldiers skulking behind a bush that could have afforded no shelter from even a pebble.

"'See here, my man,' said he going up to the soldier and exposing himself at full height to the hail of bullets, 'what do you mean by this?'

"'I'm—I'm afraid,' chattered the man with the gun.

"'Afraid!' stormed Chaffee, 'Why—' Here he stopped. The man was only a boy.

"'I'd like to get hold of the man who enlisted you! You're too young. You've no business here.' Then, after a moment, 'Come out with me and I'll stand by you for a while.'

"Together the general and the private went out further on the firing line.

"'Now lie down here,' said Chaffee, indicating a spot, 'and aim carefully and fire,' himself standing to the rear, straight as a rifle barrel, a shining mark for death. The boy recovered his composure and together they stayed until the boy got his grip. That's the kind of a man Chaffee is and his men know it."

It was in this battle that General Chaffee earned his picturesque sobriquet "The Man in Shirt Sleeves," one of the surviving Spanish officers after El Caney having said:

"I have never seen anything to equal the courage and dash of those Americans, who, stripped to the waist and led by the man in shirt sleeves were offering their naked breasts to our murderous fire, literally throwing themselves on our trenches on the very muzzle of our guns."

After the battle General Lawton said of him:

"I consider General Chaffee one of the best practical soldiers and I shall recommend him for special distinction for successfully charging the stone fort, the capture of which practically ended the battle."

This General Lawton did, and on July 8th General Chaffee was promoted to the rank of Major-General of Volunteers.

Wounded men in the military hospital at Montauk Point, Long Island, spoke glowingly of him, saying, "When he was wounded at Santiago he never left the field, but kept right on afoot, in great suffering, but more intent on the fighting than he was on the wound. He was always at the front, and his presence was an incentive to the men of his brigade." This wound was from a rifle bullet and was in his foot.

After the Santiago campaign General Chaffee was assigned to command the First Division of the Fourth Army Corps, with headquarters at Huntsville, Ala., but upon the assignment of Major-General Brooke to command the Division of Cuba he requested General Chaffee's assignment as Chief of Staff for his command, and he arrived in Havana, Cuba, December 25, 1898. On duty as Chief of Staff to the commanding General of the Division of Cuba until May, 1900, he returned to the United States to await further orders of the War Department. Due to a material reduction of volunteer troops in 1899 he was mustered out as Major-General September 13th, and appointed Brigadier-General of Volunteers the same day. June 20th he was summoned by telegraph to report to Honorable Elihu Root, Secretary of War, at Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y. At the time disquieting reports were being received almost daily from Peking, China, to the effect that the lives of foreign representatives in Peking and elsewhere in the Chinese Empire were endangered by the hostility of "Boxers" and Chinese troops, and it seemed necessary to take immediate steps for their protection. The Secretary of War informed General Chaffee of his wish that he proceed to Peking; that he take passage on the transport Grant, scheduled to sail from San Francisco July 1st and report arrival at Nagasaki, Japan, for further orders. Leaving Washington the afternoon of June 24th with his aide-de-camp, he arrived in Oakland, Cal., at five o'clock on the afternoon of July 1st. A tugboat held in waiting conveyed him to the Grant, which sailed immediately. About fifteen hundred men were aboard the transport; the 6th Cavalry, with which General Chaffee served from 1861 to 1888, a battalion of marines and a detachment of recruits. On entering the port of Nagasaki, July 21st, two transports loaded with troops en route from Manila to China were met steaming slowly out of the harbor. The men cheered their comrades on the Grant, and gave news of the battle of Tien-Tsin, China, July 13th. Reporting to the War Department his arrival at Nagasaki, General Chaffee received instructions to proceed with dispatch to Toku Bay, disembark the troops aboard the Grant, assume command of all United States troops in China, and co-operate with commanders of troops of other nations for relief of the besieged Legations in Peking. He arrived in Tien-Tsin July 31st and immediately conferred with Lieutenant-General Yamagochi, commanding a division of twelve thousand Japanese troops, with Lieutenant-General Gazlee commanding three thousand British troops, with Lieutenant-General Linevitch commanding four thousand Russian troops, with General Frey, commanding French troops, and with Field-Marshal Von Waldersee, commanding the German forces. The French and German forces combined numbered less than one thousand. It was agreed that the advances of the co-operating forces should begin August 4th. The Chinese were defeated at Pitsang August 5th, at Yangtsun August 6th, at Yung Chow August 12th, and Peking was entered and the Legations relieved August 14th. The United States troops engaged in the operations were the 9th and 14th Infantry, 6th Cavalry, Reilly's Battery of Light Artillery, and two battalions of marines, twenty-five hundred men in all. Although the allied troops met severe trials and losses, General Chaffee and his command maintained the reputation of American arms. During their occupancy of Peking the allied troops, with the sole exception of the American forces, looted the city and showed great cruelty to the conquered Chinese. A New York paper in commenting on this fact editorially, speaks of General Chaffee as "the General who kept his troops so well in hand in China, in spite of the disgraceful examples of cruelty and savagery all around them," and continues:

"In the whole history of the United States army there is no more glorious chapter than the performance of its expeditionary force which took part in the rescue of the legations. Every Chinese statesman knows that its military efficiency was not more remarkable than its complete abstinence from the outrages by which other of the allied forces were disgracing their respective countries in particular, and the names of Christianity and civilization in general. The Chinese Government has acknowledged our moderation. It was General Chaffee himself, as the commander of one of the corps which effected the relief of the legations, who expostulated with the German commander so warmly upon the excesses of looting to which some of the German troops had delivered themselves, that Count Von Waldersee returned the remonstrance 'on account of its tone.'"

In praise of General Chaffee's work in China the New York Press of February 10, 1901, said:

"At El Caney Chaffee had the eyes of America upon him. In China the eyes of Europe were turned toward this American to see what he would do. The farm boy of forty years ago was brought into contact with some of the finest soldiers with the allied Powers. There he proved that worth and fame

"'. . . from no condition rise;

"'Act well your part, there all the honor lies.'

"Whether in diplomatic conference or on the field of battle Chaffee showed the stuff Americans are made of. He fell not before those men among whom a diplomatic blunder is a crime, and on the field he took his staff where foreign officers and newspaper correspondents alike feared to follow. Chaffee is cast for the command of the Philippines, and if he lives long enough he will have the honor, barren though it may be, of 'commanding' the United States army. But the beauty of it all is that it isn't 'Chaffee luck,' but plain American ability that put him where he is."

February 9, 1901, General Chaffee was raised to the rank of Major-General of the regular army, and the promotion was celebrated by his friends in Peking, as the following dispatch relates:

"Peking, Feb. 14. The past week in Peking has practically been devoted socially to Gen. Chaffee, in honor of his promotion to the rank of Major-General in the regular Army. The officers of the American camp at the Temple of Agriculture gave a reception in his honor at the club, at which nearly all the American officers and civilians in Peking were present to congratulate him. United States Minister and Mrs. Conger gave a dinner on February 9 in Gen. Chaffee's honor, after which there was a smoker at the American Club. Owing to the dinner, it was late before Gen. Chaffee put in his appearance—shortly after 11 o'clock. As soon as it was known that he was coming through the gates the preparations were made to receive him in style and an international guard of honor was formed, the commanding officer of which was the British General, Richardson, the band playing 'Hail to the Chief' and afterward 'He's a Jolly Good Fellow.' Gen. Richardson led the cheering which followed the music and which was long and pronounced. Fully four-fifths of the British officers from the Temple of Heaven were present, with quite a number of the German officers, including members of the Field Marshal's staff, and a scattering of French and Japanese. The French Minister and Mme. Pichon gave a luncheon party in Gen. Chaffee's honor on Feb. 10, and several other dinners and receptions have been arranged. The enlisted men of the command are unfeignedly delighted over the promotion, for to them Gen. Chaffee is the exemplification of all that a good soldier should be. Another reason is that the General was once an enlisted man himself. It is doubtful if there is any man in Peking to-day who is so much liked and respected by the people of all nations as is Gen. Chaffee."

General Chaffee remained in Peking until May, 1901, when he was appointed Military Governor of the unpacified portion of the Philippines, relieving Major-General McArthur, July 4, 1901. Thus he came for the first time into intimate relations with Governor Taft, the civil head of affairs in the archipelago, the two men exercising a joint rule over the islands. The relations between them were exceedingly harmonious and have always remained so. General Chaffee's work in the Philippines had for its most important feature the suppression of the insurrection in the island of Samar, where he succeeded in capturing the famous guerilla Chieftain Lukban, thus putting an end to the war in that part of the archipelago. He also captured Malvar, another bandit of much celebrity, in Luzon, and by that means pacified an entire province. In fact it may be said that these two exploits put an end to the rebellion in the Philippines. He held command in Manila until September 30, 1902, being then transferred to command the Department of the East, with headquarters at Governor's Island, New York Harbor. In October, 1903, he was detailed as member of the General Staff of the army and entered upon duty at the War Department as Assistant to the Chief-of-Staff, Lieutenant-General Young. Upon the latter's retirement from active service, January 9, 1904, General Chaffee succeeded him as Lieutenant-General and Chief-of-Staff, the highest position in the American army. The day after this promotion, the New York Herald contained the following:

"Adna R. Chaffee, who yesterday succeeded General Young as head of the United States Army, is just a plain fighting man. No courtier soldier he, but a grim warrior who has seen many a stricken field and the bulk of whose life has been spent in hard service on the frontier chasing bad Indians and leading the advance guard in the march of civilization across this continent.

"There was no influence at Washington to help him scale the ladder of promotion. Such scant rewards as he enjoyed up to six years ago were hard earned and well won. At the time of the outbreak of the war with Spain he was only a lieutenant colonel, and the highest flight of his ambition was a colonelcy in the cavalry. If in the winter of 1897–98 anybody had told him that he would become a lieutenant general and occupy the place then held by General Nelson A. Miles, he would have laughed at the absurdity of the suggestion.

"Chaffee's career might be said to represent the apotheosis of the enlisted man. In 1861, at the beginning of the civil war, he was a private in Company K of the 6th Cavalry, and it was not until nearly two years had passed that he obtained his first commission, as second lieutenant in the same regiment. At the end of that memorable conflict he was only a first lieutenant and he did not become a major until July, 1888. It was the Spanish war that gave him his great opportunity, enabling him to rise in less than six years to the very tip top of the military tree. . . . Chaffee is a highly educated man, but most of his schooling he obtained for himself after he had grown to manhood. Born in Ohio he had only a common school training, which was discontinued when he was eighteen years of age, but after the close of the civil war he studied hard, even taking a course in law. In the army he has always been respected for his brains as well as for his prowess as a fighter. He furnished the military 'problems' for some of the recent manoeuvers, and it is an interesting fact that the map used by General Shafter in Cuba to guide his operations there—the only map that could be got—was drawn by Chaffee from a reconnoissance made by himself through the enemy's country, much of it by travelling on his hands and knees. . . . There was an occasion, twenty-one years ago, when he was one of a command under General Crook, out in Arizona, when he was reported killed, together with all the rest of the party.

"Having survived so much hardship and so many perils, General Chaffee finds himself to-day at the summit of military ambition. He lives in Washington with his charming wife in a luxurious apartment on Connecticut Avenue. He has a son at West Point, the elder of his two daughters is married to an army officer, Captain George F. Hamilton, and his little grandson, who is his special pride, is Adna, 3d.

"One of the most popular men in the army, Adna R. Chaffee is still the unpretending soldier. A hard worker, he loves his home and a good cigar. Those are his pleasures in life."

"General Chaffee is of the school of Grant and Lawton—quiet, unobtrusive, modest, but full of fight. He has never advertised himself or solicited others to do it for him. Although appointed from the ranks to a commission, no West Pointer could be more punctilious in all that pertains to a soldier and officer or more devoted to the traditions of the regular army than is General Chaffee.

"General Chaffee is loved by his troops and respected by every officer with whom he is associated or who has ever heard of him. . . . In all his long service not a breath of criticism has ever touched him, but the official records are replete with mention of his gallant work and bear testimony to his scrupulous honesty and fine executive ability.

"If his advancement, brevets and promotions had depended upon his urging his own merits, General Chaffee would still be a lieutenant in the Sixth Cavalry. That sense of honor so strong in the old line officer that preferment must come without seeking is possessed to its fullest extent by General Chaffee. He is as innocent as a child of anything approaching log-rolling or "political pull." He despises anything of the sort and would not lift his little finger to secure the influence of a man in power. These qualifications, united with his record as a fighter, organizer and executive pointed to him as the fittest officer in the service for the China command.

"General Chaffee's record is part of the history and romance of the great Indian wars west of the Mississippi. He began his service there very shortly after the Civil War in frontier posts and trailing the Indians over the great West and Southwest until the war with Spain opened and he went to make a new record in Cuba. General Chaffee does not like to be hampered in his operations and in his Indian fights he showed rare self-reliance and a disposition to cut loose from higher authorities when those authorities were not as well posted on the situation as he. Here is an anecdote which illustrates this characteristic:

"When captain in the Sixth Cavalry he was ordered to look after some unruly Indians in Arizona. Just before starting one evening he dropped into the signal office and said to the operator in charge: 'Are there any orders for me from Washington?'

"'No, sir,' said the operator.

"'Well,' responded Captain Chaffee, 'I am going out to look for some Indians. I wouldn't be surprised if your telegraph lines were cut. You will probably hear of some dead Indians, but will hardly get anything on the wires from Washington.'

"Captain Chaffee and his band started out, and sure enough, the telegraph lines were cut, and sure enough there were several dead Indians next morning. There was no means by which Washington could telegraph the captain not to 'shoot first.'

"According to General Lawton, the credit of the battle of El Caney and most of the maneuvers of the troops before Santiago belongs to General Chaffee. He was the most active of any of the officers, his wiry frame giving him strength and endurance. Beside, he had the faculty of at once catching the salient features of the surrounding country and his reconnoisances were accurate and of the greatest value. . . .

"General Chaffee is intensely loyal to his friends and to his superior officers. While attending a banquet in St. Louis a short time after the Cuban campaign something was said derogatory of General Shafter. General Chaffee at once arose and resented the reflection. He said that General Shafter had been his commander in Cuba and had there carried out the most wonderful and effective campaign. He launched into a panegyric of his superior officer that aroused the wildest enthusiasm and had everybody at the banquet cheering for General Shafter." [Philadelphia Press.]

During the summer of 1905, General Chaffee was for a time Acting Secretary of War, in the absence of Secretary Taft, and Acting Secretary Oliver. Later in the summer, accompanied by his wife and daughter, he went to France, where at the invitation of President Loubet of that country he witnessed the army manœuvres.

"LOUBET MEETS CHAFFEE

"President of France Welcomes American on Field of Sham Battle

"Chateau Brienne, Department of the Aube, France, Sept. 11.—President Loubet arrived on the field of the army manœuvres to-day, accompanied by War Minister Berteaux and General Brugere. The President went from point to point in the vast theatre of operations. At Ville Hardouin he met Lieutenant General Adna R. Chaffee, Brigadier General J. Franklin Bell, Brigadier General William Crozier and their staffs. The Americans were presented to M. Loubet, and the latter, addressing General Chaffee, said France was glad to receive the American military mission and thus acknowledge America's reception of the French military mission, which attended the Rochambeau exercises. General Chaffee in reply paid a tribute to the splendid organization and equipment of the French army. The manœuvres ended with a brillant banquet, at which President Loubet presided. M. Casimir-Perier, former President of the Republic, sat at the President's right and Lieutenant General Chaffee at his left.

"President Loubet, in proposing a toast to the heads of the states represented at the banquet, assured the foreign officers that their presence was heartily welcomed by the army and people of France.

"Minister Berteaux, in behalf of the French army, thanked the representatives of the foreign Powers for their attendance at the manœuvres, making special reference to the presence of the American mission.

"Lieutenant General Chaffee, in behalf of the President of the United States and the American Army, gave expression to their hearty recognition of the splendid reception which had been accorded the American mission by President Loubet and the French army." [New York Press.]

February 1, 1906, he retired from the service of the country he had served so long and faithfully. Since then he has made his home in Los Angeles, Cal.

"A SOLDIER

"In the forty-fifth year of his service as an American soldier, Adna Romanza Chaffee, who has filled and honored every grade in the regular army, from private soldier to lieutenant-general, except that of brigadier-general, retires to-day from the chief command of the military forces of the United States, and from the service.

"There have been few officers of high rank with whom the country has parted with more regret than it will part with Gen. Chaffee. He is one of the most soldierly soldiers who ever drew a saber in the country's service. An ideal cavalryman, an ideal regular, his record for brilliant bravery is rivaled only by his record for hard, patient, unselfish work.

"He is, we believe, the only chief commander of the United States army who rose from the ranks of the regular army. An Ohio country boy of nineteen, he enlisted in the Sixth Cavalry in 1861. He had been in the service less than two years when the material of a fine officer was recognized in him, and he was made a lieutenant. Twice during the civil war he was brevetted for gallantry in action, and twice afterward in Indian wars.

"But for twenty-one years this brilliant soldier occupied the grade of captain of cavalry. The best of his life, from his twenty-fifth to his forty-sixth year, was spent in patient service in mere company command. These long years were the regular thing then. They won the captains the honorable title of 'the old man,' by which the soldiers knew them.

"Days of more rapid advancement came for Capt. Chaffee, however. The Spanish and Philippine wars brought him out as a commander, and the Pekin campaign proved that a very good diplomatist, as well as general, may be developed from a 'high private in the rear rank.'

"Through all this honorable career, Gen. Chaffee has been just a plain American, democratic, quite without fuss or glitter, and a student as well as a fighter. The example of his record is worth a dozen military academies.

"For West Point exists not to make something else, or something more ornamental, than he, but to make men like him. As for Chaffee, he never needed West Point, yet never scorned or slighted it." [New York Evening Mail.]

He married in Frosh Village, Canada, March 22, 1854, the daughter of Doctor S. S. Foster of Knowlton, P. Q., Canada. Mr. Chaffee was the executor of his father's estate. The following biography is from the Montreal Railway Journal of February 10, 1883:

"In recommencing our series of portraits of 'Celebrities,' it is scarcely possible that we could have presented the face of a more representative man than the subject of our sketch. Mr. Chaffee is so widely known that his picture scarcely needs a word of introduction, and certainly no lengthened notice; he is a good type of the best side of the activity of the American character, and beneath a certain quickness of reply which almost amounts to brusqueness, those who have the best opportunities of judging well know that an immense amount of extreme courtesy and kindness of heart is to be found. As to Mr. Chaffee's business energy, if we might hazard an attempt at a joke, we would say he is the A. B. C. of every enterprise to which he puts his hand. Mr. Chaffee was born at Berkshire, Vt., on April 4th, 1830, and entered on his life career after finishing his education. He studied law under the guidance of Judge Aldis, but later on, entering upon a commercial training, we hear of him as filling an important position in the Customs Department of Burlington under Judge Smalley. Mr. Chaffee removed to Canada in 1861, and from that time to the present has been identified with many important business enterprises, until to-day no more representative man can be found amongst us. On his first arrival in Canada, he entered upon an insurance business for some years. At length the Railway interest growing in importance, Mr. Chaffee turned his active mind in that direction, becoming associated with the late Hon. A. B. Foster as Secretary-Treasurer of the old Canada Central and South Eastern, until a few years back, when the Hon. Bradley Barlow joining the enterprise, Mr. Chaffee came even more prominently before the community. One feature in our Canadian railway men of to-day cannot escape notice, viz., their almost ubiquity, and to this peculiar feature the subject of our sketch is no exception. In addition to the position of Secretary-Treasurer to the South Eastern Railway Company, Mr. Chaffee is connected with several other enterprises either as President, Vice-President, or simply on the Board of Directors. We might enumerate the Atlantic and North-west, Quebec and Ontario, Montreal, Portland and Boston, Lake Champlain and St. Lawrence Junction Railways, the Longueuil Navigation Company, and some other projects. The ice bridge rail across the St. Lawrence, which has now been in operation three winters, is in a great measure due to his energy. Notwithstanding all these many calls upon his time, Mr. Chaffee is one of those men who apparently rises from his desk daily with a sigh, that there is no more work to do.

Mr. Chaffee was baptized in the South Wilbraham Congregational Church, June 7, 1807, and later joined the Methodist Church there. Still later he was a member of a Presbyterian Church. For some years after his marriage he lived in Roxbury, Mass., and the records show that he bought land there in 1834, and sold land in 1835. At one time he lived in Middletown, Conn. Even as a boy he was very ingenious; he was at first in the patent leather business and spent the years from 1830 to 1835 experimenting in the making of India rubber goods. August 31, 1836, a patent was granted to him for his process of applying rubber to cloth and other articles without the use of a solvent. Formerly it required to dissolve a pound of crude rubber, a gallon or more of spirits of turpentine or other suitable solvent, costing more than $.50 a gallon. By the use of Mr. Chaffee's machinery all solvents were rendered unnecessary, the rubber being reduced to a paste. This process rendered the goods more durable and reduced their market price, labor, time and material, being saved and the cost of the manufacture being reduced one-half.

3501 William [8] Chaffee (Elem,[7] Cyril,[6] Asa,[5] Joseph,[4] John,[3] Joseph,[2] Thomas [1]) was born on Armory Hill, Springfield, Mass., October 2, 1809, and died in Somersville, Somers Township, Conn., February 7, 1874. He was married in Somers, October 29, 1835, by Reverend R. G. Dennis, to Belinda, daughter of Alexander and Abigail (Daniels) Reed. (See Appendix H.) She was born in Tolland, Conn., May 8, 1813, died in New York City, August 29, 1894, and was buried beside her husband in the family lot in Somers burying-ground.

Mr. Chaffee moved with his father from Springfield to Somersville in 1819. He had a common school education. At one time during his boyhood he took toll in Hartford, Conn., at the Hartford Bridge. He was also a clerk in Loren Sexton's store in that city, in that of Timothy Pitkin in Ellington, Conn., and of his uncle, Chester Spencer, in Somersville. In 1828 he was a member of a military company in Hartford. In 1835, he, with his brother James and Chester Spencer, formed a partnership under the name of "Spencer and Chaffees," conducting a general store for the sale of dry goods, groceries, etc., and owning and operating a grist and saw mill, all being in Somersville (formerly called Billing's Mills). They also built there on the Scantic River a factory for the manufacture of satinets, woolen and cotton goods. This building was completed in 1837, and in that year a stock company, known as the "Somersville Company," and capitalized at $30,000, was formed to carry on the business. At one time Mr. Chaffee sold in Vermont palm-leaf bonnets made in Somers Street by Jonathan and Ebenezer Clark. About 1840 he went to Pennsylvania where for three years he travelled with a wagon, successfully selling dry goods and notions. At the end of this time he went to Huron County, O., with his wife, to visit her parents. He took with him a number of palm-leaf bonnets, which he sold, buying with the proceeds goose feathers. Upon his return east he sold these at a profit sufficient to defray all the expenses of the trip. About 1843 he became a wholesale jobber of dry goods and notions in Philadelphia, the firm, Chaffees, Stout and Company, being located on Market Street. A stroke of paralysis in 1870 caused his retirement from business activities. Soon after this he went for treatment to a sanitarium in Bay City, Mich., accompanied by his wife. Later he returned to Somersville and lived on the old Chaffee homestead until his death. His widow thereafter made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Mary E. (Chaffee) Mixter, in Philadelphia and with her son, William H. Chaffee, in New York City, at which latter place she died. The following obituary of her was published September 6, 1894:

"The body of Mrs. Belinda (Reed), widow of William Chaffee, was brought from the residence of her son, William H. Chaffee, New York, to Somersville, where funeral services and interment took place on Sunday afternoon. She united with the Broad-st. Baptist church in Philadelphia June 14, 1857, in which church she bore an active part for many years. During the war of the rebellion she interested herself (often times to the sacrifice of many pleasures) in the soldiers' hospital of Philadelphia. It was no uncommon sight to find sitting at her noonday table from five to six convalescent union soldiers, to whom a generous invitation had been given to partake of a home-made meal, of which some had been so long deprived. So much did these brave men appreciate her kind acts that upon their return home many sent pictures of themselves and families, together with letters of gratitude, the correspondence being continued for a long time afterwards by their wives and children. It is not necessary to add that these tokens of loyal friendship were greatly cherished. Mrs. Chaffee no doubt inherited to some extent the love of country and patriotism so prominent in her character from her grandfather, Samuel Reed, a Revolutionary soldier of Tolland, and for whom she always bore a tender affection. From her father, Alexander Reed, heredity showed itself in that quick perception so noticeable in both. Her mother, Abigail (Daniels) Reed, filled with a soul of love and sacrifice, imparted much of the same to her daughter. Her husband, William Chaffee, was born upon Armory Hill, in Springfield, Mass., Oct. 2d, 1809, and removed when a boy with his father, Elam, to what is now known as Somersville, Conn., where he became acquainted with and married the deceased. They removed to Philadelphia about 1842."

Mrs. Belinda (Reed) Chaffee.

+5375 i William Henry[9] Chaffee, born June 21, 1843; married Eliza S. Platt.

5376 ii Elizabeth Maria Chaffee, born December 2, 1849; died in Philadelphia, December 7, 1850, at 7:30 A. M. and was buried in the family lot of William and James Chaffee, Monument Cemetery, Philadelphia, the body being later transferred to the family lot in Somers.

+5377 iii Mary Ella Chaffee, born January 24, 1853; married George W. Mixter.

3502 James[8] Chaffee (Elam,[7] Cyril,[6] Asa,[5] Joseph,[4] John,[3] Joseph,[2] Thomas[1]) was born on Armory Hill, Springfield, Mass., August 21, 1811, and died in Union, N. J., November 12, 1880. He married in Somersville, Conn., September 10, 1834, Harriet Sophia, daughter of Alpheus Billings of that place, a member of the Connecticut Legislature in 1836. She lived in Franklin, Ind., March 19, 1889. Both Mr. and Mrs. Chaffee were of Somersville at the time of their marriage. He had a florid complexion, gray eyes, and was five feet ten inches, in height. He was employed in the United States Armory in Springfield from April, 1829, to February, 1830, his work being the cutting and fitting of bayonets. In 1834 he lived in Somersville and later moved to Philadelphia, where for many years he was a wholesale dry goods merchant. He united with the Broad Street Baptist Church there at about the age of forty, and was a Trustee of it for many years. At the time of his death he lived in Union.

"Mrs. Harriet Sophia Chaffee, widow of James Chaffee, and daughter of Alpheus Billings, Esq., in the evening of life, was called to her eternal abiding place. She died at the home of her youngest son, Prof. A. B. Chaffee, Franklin, Indiana, in the seventy-sixth year of her age. In the full fruition of a well spent life she has gone to her reward. With pleasant earthly surroundings, still she longed for the far more pleasant heavenly associations. Her life has been one of usefulness. In the home circle the hallowed influence of a christian wife and mother was always felt. As an active member of the church she was a power for good. For many years a teacher in the Sunday school in the various places of her residence—Philadelphia, Saratoga Springs and elsewhere—she, by her thorough knowledge of the scripture, pointed those under her charge unerringly to the road which leadeth heavenward. With a pure, childlike faith she read God's holy word and upon it were based all her hopes of immortality. When called, as she had often been, to pass through deep waters of affliction, she rested upon her Saviour who would not leave or forsake her. She realized that underneath were the everlasting arms to sustain and comfort. Her sorrows were always sanctified to a higher spiritual advancement. Her God, while He was a God of justice, was a God of love and compassion, and she rejoiced in the redemptive power of a Saviour which made it possible for her to attain a blissful future. She had been for years a careful and prayerful student of the inspired word, and her faith was not founded upon a superficial knowledge of its teachings. She needed no writer of fiction to formulate a system of theology for her adoption, offering in place of 'thus saith the Lord' some delightful pabulum of the word shorn of its force and power and tendered as a palliative for a condemning conscience. She realized that for humanity in its sins heroic measures were a necessity or else a Saviour to suffer and die would not have been provided. She would often exclaim, 'Alas! that there should be even one for whom He had died in vain.' She was ever ready to give a reason, an intelligent, Bible-founded reason for her faith. She reared a high standard of life for her sons, three in number. How near they have approximated the line so marked for them must be for other lips to tell and other pens to write. Suffice it to say that the memory of that sainted mother is precious, and her children rise up and call her blessed. On Friday, 22d ult., after a brief religious service, the lifeless form was borne by her sons and a nephew to her last resting place by the side of her husband, who had gone home nearly a decade before. She was a native of Somers, Conn., and now lies buried there.

+5379 ii Theodore Spencer Chaffee, born December 21, 1840; married Ellen W. Spittall.

+5380 iii Arthur Billings Chaffee, born June 19, 1852; married Laura C. Putnam.

3503 Spencer[8] Chaffee (Elam,[7] Cyril,[6] Asa,[5] Joseph,[4] John,[3] Joseph,[2] Thomas[1]) was born in Armory Hill, Springfield, Mass., June 21, 1813, and died in Somersville, Conn., May 20, 1854. He was married in Longmeadow, Mass., August 1, 1844, by Reverend Mr. Bachelor, a Baptist minister, to Cindonia, daughter of Micah and Ruth (Spencer) King, the eleventh of their twelve children. She was born there July 2, 1820, and died in Wapping, Conn., January 18, 1907. Mr. and Mrs. Chaffee lie buried together in the family lot in the Somers (Conn.) burying ground.

"Cindonia King, widow of the late Spencer Chaffee, of Somers, Conn., died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Clayton Grant, of Wapping, Friday morning, Jan. 18, 1907, aged 86.

"Such is the formal statement of the outgoing of a single life. We commonly call it the end. But if we take the larger and happier view of life, believing its vicissitudes merely incidental to the development of the divine in us, then certainly the going of those we call 'full of years' is really a springing into new life,—a glad valedictory.

"Say not good-night, but in some brighter clime, bid me good-morning."

"Cindonia King, the eleventh of the twelve children of Micah King and Ruth Spencer, was born in Longmeadow, Mass., July 2nd, 1820. She was married to Spencer Chaffee, Aug. 1st, 1844. They made their home in Somers, Conn., where Mr. Chaffee conducted a farm. Later he was engaged, with his brother, in selling goods by team through the Southern states. He was a man of more than usual ability, a fine type of the men who, a half century ago, gave New England its reputation for ability and integrity in the business world. He was, however, early a victim of consumption and died at 41 years of age, just as the material fruits of his labors seemed about to be realized, leaving the young wife with one little girl to face life's battle alone.

"Mrs. Chaffee spent a year or two in Springfield, then returned to Somers and upon the marriage of her daughter, Harriet Eliza, to Clayton Grant, of South Windsor, went to live with them. She has been, for many years, a member of the Congregational church at Somers. Her last illness was only a fading away of the physical. The end came in perfect peace. Her life was and her death is, a benediction.

"Mrs. Cindonia Chaffee, one of Wapping's oldest and most highly respected residents, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Clayton Grant, Friday. The deceased was 86 years old, and had lived in this town many years. She was born in Somers in 1820 and was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. King. She was the last of a family of twelve. When a young woman she was married to Spencer Chaffee. Mr. Chaffee died several years ago. Mrs. Chaffee leaves one child, Mrs. Hattie Grant, of this place and one grandchild, Mrs. Gertrude P. Boynton of Manchester. Mrs. Chaffee was well known and was affectionately called 'Grandma Chaffee' by all who knew her. Funeral was held Sunday at 1:30 at the home of the daughter of the deceased in Wapping. The services were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Hurlbut. Burial was in Somers on Monday. The pall bearers were Chester Grant, Clayton Grant, Henry Grant and Frank Grant."

3679 Maria [8] Pease (Elizabeth [7] Chaffee, William,[6] Isaiah,[5] Joseph,[4] John,[3] Joseph,[2] Thomas [1]) was born in Enfield, Conn., November 30, 1807, and married, March 25, 1826, Alvan Clark, born in Ashfield, Mass., March 8, 1804, died in Cambridge, Mass., August 19, 1887. He was the famous maker of telescopes, his factory being in Cambridgeport, Mass.

"He was attacked on the Wednesday preceding his death by a stomach trouble which his advanced age rendered him unable to throw off. Up to his last illness, Mr. Clark had followed the course of his business closely, and even after he turned seventy seemed to lose little or none of his extraordinary skill of eye and hand or patience.

"Alvan Clark was born on a farm at Ashfield, Mass. He received an ordinary education, but at an early age showed a great taste for drawing and engraving. He removed to Lowell in 1826 and obtained a situation as a calico engraver in a mill. Nine years afterward he became a portrait painter, and settled in Boston. About 1843 his son Alvan G. Clark became interested in the study of optics, and the father also began to study mechanics and astronomy. They experimented together a good deal and finally succeeded in making a reflecting telescope. Mr. Clark and his son spent nearly ten years in the study of optics and the art of telescope making, and in the making of small optical instruments, before their claims in this general department of astronomical science were recognized. The Rev. W. R. Dawes, of England, celebrated for his measurement of double stars, hearing that Mr. Clark was constructing instruments of superior purity and power ordered a glass for his own use, which was duly sent him in the fall of 1853. This was the starting point in Mr. Clark's career as a maker of telescopes, for the performance of this glass so greatly excited the admiration of English astronomers, that Mr. Clark found himself suddenly famous and rapidly received orders for telescopes both at home and from abroad. Through his efforts he has given to the world the largest and most powerful astronomical instruments ever made, the results being the discovery of celestial bodies heretofore unknown. From New York to St. Petersburg, and in every civilized country of the world, the name of Alvan Clark is a familiar one among scientists.

"The famous instrument in the Washington Observatory was made by him and required four years of labor. That presented to the Washington and Lee College, of Virginia, by Mr. McCormick of Chicago, costing $40,000, came also from the careful hands of Clark & Sons. The great telescope in California bequeathed by Mr. Lick, was made in the workshop of the Clarks, and also the famous telescope made a few years ago for the Pulkowa Observatory in Russia. He is also the inventor of a double eye-piece, an ingenious and valuable method of measuring small celestial arcs.

"On the night of January 31, 1862, he and his son, Alvan G., while making some observations with a newly finished telescope, discovered the companion of Sirius, for which the French Academy of Sciences bestowed on him the Lalande Medal." [New York Tribune.]

"Mr. Alvan Clark's personal qualities so strongly influenced his achievements that they form an interesting subject of study. Most remarkable was his aversion to advertising himself or his telescopes in any way whatever. He never sought an order. He could never be induced to place specimens of his handicraft on exhibition: even the Centennial at Philadelphia had nothing to show from his hands. Astronomers the world over applied in vain for a price-list of the productions of Alvan Clark & Sons. The firm would not print anything of the kind. Nowhere was anything arranged for display. Visitors to his workshop, whatever their rank, position or objects, were received with the same unstudied courtesy, and found everybody, from the head of the firm down, in his working garb. No pretensions to a secret art were ever made. When, in travelling abroad, members of the firm found their foreign colleagues afraid to show how they worked, the only impression conveyed was that human nature had its weaknesses. Never before was an art or manufacture built up on so admirable a moral basis." [New York Nation.]

3710 Harriet Cornelia [8] Chaffee (Samuel,[7] William,[6] Isaiah,[5] Joseph,[4] John,[3]

Joseph,[2] Thomas [1]) was born in Enfield, Conn., October 13, 1846, and married in St. Peter, Minn., July 20, 1867, Doctor Henry W. Stauffer of Mankato, Minn., born near Wooster, Wayne County, O., November 6, 1842, died in Santa Barbara, Cal., January 9, 1894. He had a dark complexion, dark brown eyes, and was five feet, five and one-half inches in height. He joined the Presbyterian Church, of which his wife is also a member, at the age of twenty-four, and sung in the choir. At the outbreak of the Civil War, although only fourteen years of age, and at boarding school, he enlisted in the Union army in a company composed of his school fellows, and commanded by one of his professors, but on learning of his enlistment his parents had his name stricken from the roll, to his great disappointment. The following year a married brother enlisted, and in response to the combined entreaties of his wife and younger brother, the latter was allowed to go in the elder's place. He was enrolled as Sergeant in Company H, 120th Ohio Volunteer Infantry, August 19, 1862, in East Union, O., and was mustered in for three years, October 14, 1862, in Mansfield, O. He fought in the Red River Campaign and was taken prisoner on Red River. He was confined in Camp Ford, Texas, for thirteen months; six months of this time he and his fellow prisoners were without any kind of shelter from sun or storm, but finally they were allowed to go from the stockade and bring in logs, from which they constructed little huts. A stream of good water flowed through the stockade, thus making the situation a little less unbearable than it would otherwise have been. Many died, but Doctor Stauffer came through the long, weary trial, and was discharged at the close of the war, in the spring of 1865. He went to Faribault, Minn., in 1867, to practice dentistry, and there met, in musical circles, Harriet C. Chaffee. They lived in Mankato until the winter of 1880–81, when they moved to California, locating in Santa Barbara, where Doctor Stauffer died of Bright's disease. He was warm-hearted, had a genial disposition, and had hosts of friends in all classes of society.

Harriet Cornelia Chaffee moved from Enfield to Red Wing, Minn., when she was ten years old, and soon after the death of her father. In speaking of the trip she says:

"When my mother with her three younger children moved from Connecticut to Minnesota, we went from La Crosse, Wis., to Red Wing, Minn., by the steamer 'City Belle.' Our new home was near the river, and we used to watch to see that boat once more, but we never saw it. Later we learned that the Government was using it as a transport; still later, I found that the 'City Belle' was sunk at Red River, from which my husband, with many others, had to swim to rebel shores."

Mrs. Stauffer lives with her daughter in Los Angeles, Cal.

Y., where they lived with Joseph Manning Chaphe, until Caroline (Childs) Chaphe remarried.

Children:

5533 i Irving Joseph[9] Chaphe, born near Morrisville in July, 1853; died in Golden, Colo., December 19, 1879; went with his parents to Missouri in 1856, later returning to live with his grandfather Chaphe; on his mother's second marriage he made his home with her, afterwards living with his aunt, Mrs. Short; here he went to school for two years, being fond of reading and study and being said by his teacher to have had "the greatest mind and keenest ideas" of any scholar she had ever taught; at the age of fourteen his stepfather forced him to return home, where he lead an unhappy life, working hard, and receiving little reward; he left home and went out into the world to make his way, becoming a coal miner in Illinois at the age of nineteen; here he stayed for two years, then became a laborer in Missouri for a like period, in May, 1876, going to Denver, Colo., and in the following month to Georgetown, Colo., where in partnership with another man, he staked a claim and drove a tunnel four feet by six and eighty feet in length; not finding paying ore, the claim was abandoned and Mr. Chaphe mined for others; later he returned as far as Golden, where he died of pneumonia: a local paper said of him: "He was a well known and highly respected miner, who had resided here for sometime, making friends of all with whom he became acquainted. In the death of Mr. Chaphe we suffer the loss of one of our best citizens."

5534 ii Ellen Caroline Chaphe, born in Eaton; died in De Ruyter, N. Y., in April, 1855.

3741 Andrew Jackson[8] Chaphe (Joseph Manning,[7] Joseph,[6] Isaiah,[5] Joseph,[4] John,[3] Joseph,[2] Thomas[1]) was born near Morrisville, N. Y., June 14, 1834, and married in New York City, November 1, 1858, Mary A. Condon.

Mr. Chaphe's recollections of a long life are best told in his own words:

"I was born on a hill in a large red farm house surrounded with shade and fruit trees, where the sun shone brighter and the birds sang sweeter than in any other place. My mother had a mild nature—I never saw her angry. She was kind-hearted, assisting those less fortunate, never wishing others to know of it. She was sick with consumption for two years, patient, resigned, never complaining, and died when I was ten years old. She was of Holland descent; her parents were burnt out in New Jersey during the Revolutionary War. I remember hearing them tell of seeing their furniture broken up and used as fuel for cooking the British officers' food.

"I was a weak child, could not stand alone until many months older than other children, was slow of speech, could not talk plain and did not attend school until seven years of age. I was considered dull, was fat and when I attempted to run would fall. I seldom took an active part in the sports and plays of other boys. At about the age of fifteen I grew tall and slim. Although brought up on a farm I was not a farmer, my father and older brothers doing the farm work while I worked in the house. I attended district school and did housework until I was fifteen, then went to school and did farm work until I was eighteen. The two following winters I attended school at Morrisville with my younger brother Henry. I inherited a taste for reading, a weakness for poetry, but no knowledge of music.

I was thankful I came on earth after Shakespeare and Byron. At the age of eighteen I went into a machine shop and served a hard apprenticeship. During this time I read and studied mechanical works, but had little time or attention for amusements. I did stable work, cleaned castings, cut screws by hand, etc., with no chance to learn or practice good machinist's work. Finally in 1855 I went away among strangers,—a tramp. I begged for employment before it was obtained, and when secured, exerted myself to the utmost. One day's wages did not pay for two days' board. I never had to ask for employment or influence after that. My first work was for C. S. Hall, in Rochester, N. Y., building rollers for gold foil instead of 'gold beating.' Later I did heavy mill work to connect the water wheels of a flouring mill with a steam engine; before this work was quite completed I was chosen by Messrs. Green and Hunter, who had arrived from Hartford, Conn., to assist them in erecting a 24x60 inch upright condensing engine (the first in Rochester) to be used during low water of the Genessee river, in the 'Model Mills' owned by Joseph Hall, father of C. S. Hall. My relations with Green and Hunter were pleasant, my services satisfactory, and when the engine was completed and running, I did the firing for it. The following summer, 1856, I was assistant to the engineer, J. S. Hunter, and generally had charge at night. The friendships formed at this time have continued for fifty years. When not required on the engine, Hunter and I worked in the machine shop of Joseph Hall. This year I joined the Rochester Light Guards, D. M. Dewey, Commander. In the summer of 1857, Messrs. Thompson, Hart and others arrived from Hartford to erect a 42x90 inch beam engine for S. P. Ely's flouring mill, near Hall's, and during the autumn I had charge of running this engine, the largest built by Woodruff & Beach at that time. During the following winter I visited relatives in Central New York and later New York City and Philadelphia. In the spring of 1858 I began work for Woodruff & Beach of Hartford, Conn. Here I learned my trade. I was given a good chance in the shop, which I improved by learning much and taking a great interest in my work; for five months I lost no time, improving every moment. I did much work on the pumping engine and also on a 14 inch W. & B. built for the Fair of the American Institute, working on it many nights, without charge for time. This engine was well built and highly finished; it was burnt during the Fair in the fire of the Crystal Palace, New York City, October 5th, 1858. I assisted in the erection of the pumping engine at Cypress Hills, L. I., during the winter of 1858-59, a hard winter's work, performed with credit, and followed by a voluntary raise of wages on returning to the shop. In 1859 Woodruff & Beach built the engines for the sloop of war Mohican; I worked on them in the shop and in the summer was sent to the Kittery (Portsmouth) Navy Yard to assist in placing them in the vessel, being given important work which I executed satisfactorily. I visited Portsmouth and the surrounding country. I went on the Mohican on her trial trip, arriving in the Brooklyn Navy Yard, after being eleven days at sea. The vessel sailed to join the African Squadron, January 19th, 1860, and I returned to Hartford, having been on the Mohican five months. In the spring of 1860 I had charge of building and erecting an engine in Brooklyn, N. Y., and on returning to Hartford began housekeeping, having purchased a house and fruit garden. That summer I did much important work for my employers. I had charge of building an 18 inch engine and erecting it in a factory in Providence, R. I. On my return to Hartford in the fall a son was born. The winter of 1860-61 I helped to erect the second pumping engine at Cypress Hills, Brooklyn, doing other large and important work. In the spring of 1862 I had charge of erecting a new set of pumps and making important improvements in the plant at Prospect Park, Brooklyn Water Works. When completed the engine was run on a trial for five days and nights without a stop, obtaining the highest 'duty' ever made by a Woodruff & Beach pumping engine. My next work was building two nine inch portable segmental engines, the invention of that genius of the steam engine, William Wright; when they were completed and tested Mr. Wright pronounced them perfect, the only one of all his inventions that proved so on the first trial. In the autumn of 1862 I built a nine inch segmental stationary engine for shop use, doing the work nearly alone. I nearly loved the little machine. It ran several years requiring no repairs. That year I did some of the best work on the Kearsarge engines. Following this I had charge of erecting a pair of twenty-two inch engines for the factory in Hartford of Colt's Revolving Fire Arms. They drove the entire factory, one of the largest works of the country. In the summer of 1863 I was given the charge of building of a pair of segmental engines for the gun boat Pequoit. In the autumn I put the engines in the boat at the Charlestown Navy Yard, Boston. I received many compliments from the officers and men in the Navy Yard for my manner of handling the work, and the rapidity with which the engines were put together, though my force of men was small. By earnest appeals from Messrs. Lane and Hart, I was prevailed upon to remove to the Brooklyn Water Works, as first assistant engineer, running the pumping engines. My employers sought to have me remain with them but personal friendship prevailed; I left the shop after five and a half years of hard work and varied experience. A few months after I entered the shop the foreman remarked that 'Chaphe is the only man who ever came and gained a leading position without backing; he came here a stranger and to-day there is not a man in the shop that Mr. Woodruff (president of the company) has more confidence in than Chaphe.' I was chosen by Mr. Wright, superintendent of the works, to build his inventions, having the ability to make the first without a model. Years later, a mechanic from a distant city, through acquaintance and friendship for me, called on Mr. Wright at Newburg, N. Y., and was told by him that 'of all the boys who grew up under me, Chaphe was the only one who remembered me after getting out in the world,' to which the visitor replied 'Never heathen worshipped his idol more than Chaphe did Wright.' I was always loyal to Woodruff & Beach and ever exerted myself in their interest, being trusted by them in important affairs where honesty and mechanical knowledge were required. I required of myself and others good work in and out of the shop, and realized the importance of satisfying customers. I began working for the City of Brooklyn, November 1st, 1863, and continued until March 1st, 1870. Life seemed very quiet compared with my previous experiences. In my new work I was not idle but it was monotonous compared with the old. I read and studied, reviewing the mechanical studies of former years and going deeper into them. I industriously cultivated a fruit and vegetable garden at my home in East New York [part of Brooklyn] a mile from the Ridgewood Engine House, Brooklyn Water Works. Then at the earnest solicitation of my friend T. J. Whitman, brother of Walt Whitman, I accepted the arduous duty of taking charge of the erection of four large pumping engines built by the Knap Fort Pitt Foundry Co., Pittsburg, Pa., for the new Water Works, St. Louis, Mo. I began this work March 1st, 1870, calling at Pittsburg to look the shop over, then proceeding to St. Louis. I found the situation very unfavorable, no buildings, a lack of proper tools for doing the work, the engines and pump not built in a steam engine shop, and last but not least an entire lack of help used to that class of work. A less energetic man would have been discouraged, but I only realized that here I must have even more than my old energy and will power and I nerved myself to the task. I worked, worked hard, mentally and physically. A year of great care and labor passed, the work of three men done by one. March 2nd, 1871, the following telegram was sent from St. Louis to J. M. Knap in Pittsburg by J. G. Knap:

" 'Steam was let into No. 1 H. S. this morn 10.30 for the first time. At 4.30 she was pumping with full load like clock work, making 10 revolutions. Always bet on Chaphe when you wish to win. All four engines are now running. What day can I set for the opening?'

"In April, 1871, the engines being finished we began to supply the city with settled water, a welcomed change from the former mud from the Mississippi River. I was appointed Chief Mechanical Engineer of the St. Louis Water Works, J. F. Steele being my 1st assistant. I continued in charge of the Water Works for sixteen years, until May 31st, 1887, when I voluntarily resigned; my mechanical work was finished and I had been steadily employed for thirty-two years, virtually having had but four situations in that time. On the occasion of my resignation the Water Commissioner sent a communication to the Mayor concluding as follows:

" 'As regards the value to the City of the services of Mr. Chaphe in the position

I am Yours truly W. H. Chaffee of Chief Mechanical Engineer of the pumping department, I desire to put myself on record as stating in the most unqualified terms that his 16 years administration of the pumping department has been thoroughly honest, that he possesses exceptional skill as a mechanic and as an engineer, and that the success of the works up to the present time is largely due to his energy and ability.

[Signed] "'THOS. J. WHITMAN.
"'Water Commissioner.'

"I had been associated with Mr. Whitman for nearly thirty years and we were closer than brothers. During several years of my active mechanical life I was a member of the Engineers' Club of St. Louis and also of the American Society of Civil Engineers. I became interested in this genealogy in 1883, and have maintained an interest in it since, laboring and writing much, that the family history might be more complete. I attended the Chicago World's Fair in 1893, and took a great interest in the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in 1904, being in attendance thirty days. In September and October, 1905, I went six thousand miles by rail to Yellowstone Park, Spokane, Seattle, Tacoma, Portland, where I visited the Exposition, thence by steamer to San Francisco, returning by way of Los Angeles, Salt Lake City, Pueblo, Colorado Springs and Denver. I especially enjoyed Southern California and took many notes. I am extremely interested in the Panama Canal and have been furnished from Washington with many reports and maps relating to it. Were I a younger man, I should probably see it."

December 3, 1895, he was elected a Trustee of this church, which position he held until November, 1903. His residence is in New York City.

Since 1883, Mr. Chaffee has been preparing this genealogy. He has spent a great amount of time, considerable money and has visited the state and town records throughout the United States, searching for information regarding the descendants of Thomas Chaffe. The many copies of original records contained in this volume attest his industry and thoroughness. The toil has been more than offset by the pleasure of the search, and he has given some of the best years of his life to this research.

The various printed question blanks sent out in 1883 and years following were the means of much interesting and valuable correspondence, which has been continued up to the present time.

The business house of Chaffee, Morehouse & Carmichel, located at 43–45 Worth Street, New York City, was nearly all destroyed by fire on the afternoon of February 4, 1908, the fire starting about quarter past four in the afternoon. A singular feature of the fire was that the original matter of the Chaffee lineages stored there, though in close proximity to the raging flames, were but slightly burned, and but little injured by water, to the great joy of the compiler. Even had this valuable matter been lost, the book could have been printed without the loss of a single item, as three copies of the completed manuscript were in the hands of the publishers.

The editor and his other co-workers think the family owe him a debt of gratitude for bringing to light the rare and interesting matter now presented. From various parts of England and Canada he has obtained abstract copies of early wills and family records. His great effort has been to make this a history that will be read with appreciation and interest by the descendants of Thomas Chaffe and all others who bear the surname.

6101 i Bertha Eliza [10] Chaffee, born in New York City, November 12, 1875; died in Liberty, N. Y., January 30, 1904; she was baptized in the Mt. Morris Baptist Church, by Reverend William C. Bitting, January 30, 1887, and was an active and energetic worker in that church until her removal to Liberty in 1900; she was graduated from the New York City Public Schools with a high average; she was engaged to be married to Floyd Mayham Grant of New York City, formerly of Schoharie, N. Y.; he was graduated from Cornell University in 1895 as an electrical engineer, and later was employed by the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, in New York City, being several times advanced; during this employment he was taken ill with consumption, and in 1898 died in Schoharie, where he was buried; in the late summer of 1900, Bertha E. Chaffee, too, fell ill of lung trouble, and September 11th of that year entered the Loomis Sanitarium, Liberty, for treatment; the trouble soon developed into consumption; in 1903 her parents made their home there, and there, in 1904, she passed away; she was a bright and active girl, jovial and loving in disposition, visiting and bringing cheer to the homes of many, thereby leaving in sweet remembrance a life that was dear to all who knew her; a memorial window has been placed to her memory in the Baptist Church in Liberty, of which she was a member at the time of her death; she was buried in the Chaffee family lot in Somers, Conn.

"Fourteen years ago there came to our village from New York a young girl who soon won her way into many hearts. Year after year Bertha Chaffee returned to be greeted by an ever increasing number of friends. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Chaffee were also greatly appreciated here. No one marvelled to see young Floyd Mayham Grant attracted by the sweet stranger. It seemed so natural that these two rare spirits should joy in each other's presence that when it became known the two were affianced envy and jealousy slunk away and smiles and blessings followed the youthful pair. Six years ago just when life's cup seemed brimming full of gladness and promise, young Grant suddenly passed into immortality. Bertha Chaffee bowed in submission to God's decree, but the body, weaker than the spirit, began to droop. Father and mother love clasped arms about their only child, and held Death at bay till January 30, 1904, when at Liberty, N. Y., Bertha Chaffee died. Mrs. John B. Grant attended the last sad rites at Liberty. All classes and ages here are expressing affection for the dear girl and deep sympathy for the parents, who have lost the light of their home." [Schoharie Standard, February 6, 1904.]

"Bertha Eliza Chaffee, daughter of William H. and Eliza S. Chaffee, died at her home on Wedemeyer Terrace Saturday morning, aged 28 years. Miss Chaffee came to Liberty about four years ago for her health and during her residence here made many friends. The services will be held this afternoon at the house at 2 o'clock, Rev. Dr. W. C. Bitting of New York, officiating, assisted by Rev. S. F. Frohock, pastor of the Baptist church. Remains interred in the Liberty cemetery and later will be removed to family plot at Somers, Conn." At the age of thirty-eight he united with the Baptist Church.

Mrs. Mixter is extremely interested in all ancestral matters, and is a member of the Daughters of the Revolution, in which society she is most active. She is a member of the Baptist Church, in which she has done much work.

Children, born in Philadelphia:

6102 i William Chaffee[10] Mixter, born March 16, 1878; married in Trenton, N. J., May Cluxton; residence, 1908, Trenton; is a salesman. J., were conducted on the afternoon of June 3, 1908, at the home of her parents. The officiating clergymen were the Rev. Dr. A. J. Weisley and the Rev. Dr. Samuel M. Studdiford.

"At the services there were many of the younger people of Trenton, among whom Mrs. Mixter was very widely known.

5378 Edward James[9] Chaffee (James,[8] Elam,[7] Cyril,[6] Asa,[5] Joseph,[4] John,[3] Joseph,[2] Thomas [1]) was born in Somersville, Somers Township, Conn., August 1, 1836, and married (1) there, March 28, 1860, Mary Elizabeth, daughter of Alexander King and Margaret (Snodgrass) Young of Philadelphia, where both were living at the time of their marriage. She died in New York City, April 20, 1886, and was buried in the Somers Cemetery. She was a member of the Plainfield (N. J.) Baptist Church and of the Mt. Morris Baptist Church, New York City. Mr. Chaffee married (2) in Schoharie, N. Y., July 25, 1888, Mrs. Mary Cynthia (Baker) Drake, daughter of Daniel and Hannah (Durand) Baker. She was born in Ransomville, N. Y.

Mr. Chaffee has a florid complexion, blue-gray eyes, is five feet, eight inches in height, and of a jovial disposition. He united with the Plainfield Baptist Church at the age of forty and later with the Mt. Morris Baptist Church, in both of which he has held the position of Trustee, and in the latter that of Treasurer also. For several years after his marriage he lived in Philadelphia, and then moved to New York City. About 1871 he moved to Plainfield, his business remaining in New York, which city he again made his residence in 1878, and up to the present time. There he has for many years been a prominent dry goods and commission merchant. He is interested in the study of his ancestral lines and is a member of the Empire State Society, Sons of the American Revolution, and of the New England Society.

"Edward J. Chaffee, of the dry goods commission firm of Kibbe, Chaffee & Company, was born in Somersville, Tolland County, Conn., in the year 1836, and at an early age removed with his parents to Philadelphia, in which city his father engaged for many years in the dry goods jobbing business. He graduated at a prominent mercantile and classical school, and as soon as he was prepared entered upon a mercantile career, in which he has continued actively to the present time.

"Early in the year 1864 Mr. Chaffee accepted a position as salesman in the well-known house of Billings, Roop & Company, Philadelphia and New York. He began in the Philadelphia house, but remained there only a few months, being transferred to the New York house. The firm of Billings, Roop & Company dissolved in January, 1865. The house of J. M. Billings & Company, of which Mr. Chaffee was the company, was established in New York, and that of Roop & Kibbe in Philadelphia. Succeeding J. M. Billings & Company came the firm of Billings, Chaffee & Company, and at the death of Mr. Billings the style of the firm was changed to Chaffee & Shreve. Subsequently, to enlarge the business, a connection was formed with Mr. H. R. Kibbe, who had been long and favorably known in this line, the style becoming Kibbe, Chaffee, Shreve & Company, New York, and Kibbe, Chaffee & Company, Philadelphia, which continued for over ten years. In January last the firm-name was again changed to Kibbe, Chaffee & Company.

"Mr. Chaffee is very popular with consignors and customers, and some valuable accounts have been with his house over a quarter of a century. This long and successful experience in the handling of knit goods causes his advice to be sought after by young manufacturers, who have found in him a good adviser and friend. American industries generally have found in him an able advocate of their interests, and both by voice and pen he has done much to sustain the cause of protection. Mr. Chaffee has been for some time a member of the Chamber of Commerce, the Merchants' Club and various organizations of a religious and social character. He has had many positions of trust, and is one of the executors and trustees of the large estate of his relative and late partner, Mr. Billings.

"Notwithstanding his business cares, Mr. Chaffee has always found time for literary pursuits. He possesses a large and well-selected library, the contents of which are not for ornament but for use. His reading has been unusually extensive, embracing all classes of literature. American artists also, among whom he numbers many as personal friends, have found in him a wise and liberal patron, and in his collection of paintings may be seen valuable examples of some of our most talented native artists. A carefully chosen lot of old Chinese porcelains of beautiful forms and color adorn the cabinets and shelves of his home, and some ancient classical objects give evidence again of his connoisseurship." In June, 1888, he accepted a call to Seymour, Ind., remaining there until September, 1890, when he went to South Bend, Ind. In 1895 while there he was President of the Indiana Baptist Young People's Union. Later he was President of the Baptist College in Marshall, Tex., and in 1908 had a charge in Kalamazoo, Mich.

"Mr. Chaffee is one of those useful 'all-around' men in denominational work who may always be relied upon to perform the service he may have in hand with business like promptness and accuracy, with skillful use of opportunity and material. As teacher and pastor he has been most successful. The church which he serves is doubtless the strongest, with possibly one exception, in Northern Indiana, and may well count itself rich in having such a pastor." She married in Brooklyn, N. Y., October 15, 1878, Frederick Deming Green of that place, where he was born July 3, 1850.

Mrs. Green was educated in the Hartford (Conn.) High School and later graduated from the Maplewood School of Music in East Haddam, Conn.

"After a residence of some years in Hackensack, N. J., Mr. and Mrs. Green removed to Thompson, Conn., in 1885. In 1889 they united with the Congregational Church, bringing letters from the Dutch Reformed Church in Hackensack, which they both joined soon after their marriage. From the home, over which she presided with so much grace and efficiency Mrs. Green's death removes a beloved wife, a much needed mother, a model housekeeper, a gracious hostess, and a kind neighbor. The very house, which had been gradually transformed to express her ideas of convenience and comfort, is eloquent in its emptiness. A husband, daughter and nephew, regular members of this household, together with her mother, who spent much of her time here, and two brothers, will naturally feel most keenly this loss from their family circle. There are others, not all in the circle of kindred, to whom she had greatly endeared herself, by whom her death will be felt as an irreparable loss. The charm which fitted her to shine in wider circles, and gave such zest to her years of city life, was never lost. She owed even less to her brilliant repartee and nimble wit than to her ready sympathy and unerring tact. Appreciating the central place still held by the church in the thought and life of a typical New England community, Mrs. Green identified herself with the church more completely than at any earlier period of her life, and was an interested, active and efficient worker as long as strength permitted. She was to the last a constant attendant at all the Sabbath and mid-week meetings. Not least important were the services rendered her Sunday-school class of young ladies. These last years afforded opportunities for intellectual and spiritual growth which were seized with eagerness.

"Mrs. Green was a woman of unusual versatility and of great force of character. Her life had developed in unwonted measure resources that might otherwise have been latent." [Obituary notice.]

Mrs. Green's funeral was conducted at her home in Thompson on January 31, at two o'clock in the afternoon, by her pastor, Reverend G. H. Cummings, and her body was interred in the family lot in the West Thompson Cemetery.

In 1884 she was graduated from the High School there, reading one of the two class papers delivered at the graduating exercises. The following summer she visited Hartford, Conn., Philadelphia, Pa., New York City and other places, the trip being one of extreme interest to one accustomed to life in a western city. A desire to put into practice some original ideas concerning the art of teaching, caused her to take charge for a year of a country school in Bonhomme, Mo. Her school consisted of sixty scholars and was ten miles from the railroad; there being neither church nor Sunday school within miles of her, she obtained permission to conduct a Sunday school in the schoolhouse. This service became so popular that under the auspices of her successors it has continued up to the present time and bids fair to shortly develop into a church.

Mr. Chivvis was for eighteen years connected with a firm dealing in hardwood lumber, in the successive capacities of bookkeeper and secretary, and in 1901 established himself in business under the name of W. R. Chivvis Hardwood Lumber Company. APPENDIX

THOMAS CHAFFE'S BIBLE

Thomas Chaffe mentions in his will under date of July 25, 1680 (which will is recorded at Plymouth, Mass.), the names of two children, Nathaniel and Joseph. Nathaniel is spoken of as the eldest son. Joseph was made the executor of his father's will, and on the 15th day of May, 1683, he settled his estate. In the inventory of the household things, a mention is made of a great Bible, and two other books, valued at 11s. 6d.

On the 22d day of September, 1694, Joseph Chaffe (the younger son of Thomas), in his will says, "I leave unto my son Joseph the Great Bible that was my father's."

This grandson Joseph married for his first wife, Abigail Hills. His second wife was Jemima Chadwick. He removed from Barrington, Mass., to Woodstock, Mass. (now Conn.), where he died in 1759.

Josiah Chaffee, the youngest son of Joseph and Jemima (Chadwick) Chaffe evidently came into possession of the Bible from his father, and from Peter Chaffee of Woodstock, one of the direct descendants of Josiah, this highly prized heirloom was received.

Upon one of the blank spaces is found written, "Thommas Chaffy his Booke 1649." Over the Christian name is written, "1664, July." To the writer the earlier date indicates when the Book was printed, the later date showing time of purchase or possession. A photograph of the entries in this Bible will be found on the opposite page.

The other family names with their various data have been found recorded upon the ancient books in the town clerk's offices at Swansea, Mass., Woodstock, Conn., and elsewhere, proving the inscriptions written in this Bible to be correct.

It was observed that the title pages of both The Old and New Testament were so badly worn, and in such a dilapidated condition, that it was impossible to decipher the date of publication, which date, however, was correctly proven by the successful search made at the Library of the American Bible Society in New York City, where a Bible of same edition, and in good state of preservation, was discovered. In March, 1886, there was forwarded as per purchase from a London book house, a Bible of like edition (but red lined). It was shipped on the Oregon, which steamer accidentally sank in New York Bay upon the day of its arrival.

The Book, badly water soaked, was recovered in July following, and the few loose sheets, including title pages, now fastened in the fore and after part of this Bible, were taken therefrom.

in the dusk his horse stumbled and fell, throwing him upon his head with such force that his brains were literally dashed out. The Quakers openly declared it to be the judgment of God for his persecution of their sect. He was buried in the old graveyard at the corner of Stoughton and Boston streets, Upham's Corner, Dorchester, Mass., where his gravestone bears the following quaint and curious inscription:

"Here lyes our captaine and major of Suffolk was withall,
A godly magistrate was he, and major generall,
Two troops of hors with him here came, such worth his love did crave,
Ten companyes of foot also mourning marcht to his grave.
Let all that read be sure to keep the faith as he hath done.
With Christ he lives—now crown'd, his name was Humphrey Atherton.

This remarkable geneaology covers a period of twelve hundred and four years, but it is easily carried back to the very dawn of civilization after the overthrow of the Ancient Roman Empire, and would give a clear genealogical record covering a period of more than thirteen hundred years.

OTHER CHAFFEES IN AMERICA

Matthew Chaffe, so far as the researches have disclosed, is the second person found upon record in America, bearing the surname of Chaffe, the first being Thomas Chaffe, the Emigrant.

Matthew Chaffe is first mentioned in the records of the First Church in Boston, as follows:

"Mathew Chaffe ship carpenter Admitted The 14th of ye 6th Moneth [August] 1636."

And five years later,

"Sarah Chafey wife of oe brother Mathew Chafey admitted The 14th Day of ye 1st Moneth [March] 1641."

Beyond this we know nothing of Mathew Chaffe's wife.

"Mathewe Chafe" was made a Freeman the "17th of the 3d mo [May] 1637." Records of the Colony of Massachusetts Bay.]

There was

"Granted also to our brother Mathew Chafey a greatt Lott there at the Mount [Mount Wollaston] for four-heads [man, wife, and two servants] The 19th of 12th Moneth (called February) 1637." [Boston Town Records.]

In 1639 in Boston

"There was a good deal said about erecting a new Meeting-house. At length the Church chose a committee of five of their number and gave them power to fix upon a location as they saw fit. . . . While these gentlemen had the matter in charge, a paper was drawn up and signed by a considerable number of the influential inhabitants, strongly urging that the most preferable site for the new house was at the Green. This place is pretty clearly designated in this document, and it is very nearly that on a part of which the Old South Church now stands. Mathew Chaffe with twelve others, signed the petition to locate at the Green." [Drake's History of Boston.]

In 1642 "Mathew Chafey" was a member of the Ancient and Honourable Artillery Company of Boston, says Whitman, the historian of that organization.

"This 27th of 1st mo., 1643. [March 27] . . . As also that there shall be a high way reserved through the milfeild, two rods in breadth from the west corner of Mathew Chafeth's garden, unto the little howse by the sayd swamps, and from thence to the windmill as directly as the land will beare." [Boston Town Records.]

Later in the same year:

"This 29th of 11th mo, 1643. . . . At a meeting this day. . . . There is liberty granted to Mathew Chafeth [and others] to make wharfes towards the sea before their proprietyes in the Milne-feild." [Ibid.]

"Chaffie's lot extended back to what was the end of Hanover street in 1643, when it was ordered that the way be continued further, two rods broad, 'from the west corner of Mathew Chafeth's garden unto the little howse by the said swamp' which Christopher Stanley had just bought of the town, 'and from thence to the windmill as directly as the land will beare.'" [Boston Book of Possessions.]

"The possession of Matthew Chaffie within the limits of Boston.

"One house and lott bounded with John Gallop northeast: Sampson Shoare southwest: Thomas Mekins northwest: and the Cove southeast." [Ibid.]

The Salem, Mass., Court Records show that "Goodman Chaffy" made a deposition on "29th day 4th month 1641." He was also a witness "9th day 5th month 1644."

In 1645, a suit was brought by Captain Smith, a negro trader, against his first mate, Kaezar who, when his ship Rainbowe was in port at the Barbadoes, and the Captain absent, had set sail, and brought ship and cargo to Boston, on pretext that ship, cargo, and crew were in danger. In the course of the case, we find the following reference to Matthew Chaffe, his judgment as a ship carpenter being of value in the case:

"The shipp & pceed of ye cargo to be delivered as now shee is to Capt. Smyth, he paying such due charges as hath necessarily bene layd out about her since her comeing hither, that shee is now ye better for, to be iudged [judged] by Goodman Chaffye & Goodm Garret, & that ye ship may be stayed till ye order is satisfied." [Records of the Colony of Massachusetts Bay.]

"This 19th of 8th mo., 1646. . . . A generall townes metting warned from howse to howse. . . . It is ordered and agreed on that Bro. Tho. Marshall, bro. Chaffy, bro. Negoos, Wm. Franeklin, lat Constables, are to be presented to the Generall Court for to answer the defect in not payinge that which is behind on the Garison's wages. . . . It is ordered that ther shal be a ratt of 60 l forth with made by the townesmen for the satisfienge of the Garison at the castle this year ensueinge." [Boston Town Records.]

"This Indenture Wittnesseth that I mathew chafie of Boston Ship Carpenter doe for dew Consideration me moving therunto lett graunt bargaine & sell unto John Capen of Dorchester in New England a cerajne parcell of land Contajning twenty foote in breadth lying and Adjoyning unto the land of one Daniell Turrell on the South west side & my owne land on the north east side & the north west end abutting uppon my owne land—fower foote within the fence that now is there that is to say a litle below my well & the south east end of it to Runne downe to the sea as farr as other mens proprietjes doe. To have and to Hold to him his heires Execcuto Administrators and Assignes for euer, also I doe for myselfe & Successors graunt that the said John Capen shall have libertje to make windowes for light on that side next to me—without opposition or hindrance & also that if I build, or sell any land next to him the said John Capen that then the said John Capen shall have the Refusall of 3 or 4 foote of ground for a way to goe behinde his howse. In wittnes whereof I the said Mathew Chafe doe sett my hand & seale the first day of the first month 1648.

The Treasurer's Account Book of the Colony of Massachusetts Bay [now in the possession of the New England Historic-Genealogical Society, Boston] shows that "Mathew Chaffe" gave toward the Narragansett Expedition £3. "1648. 7mo. 21st."

In 1649 he bought a farm which was mortgaged, as is seen by the following deed:

"Whereas John Clarke hath mortaged his fferme in Newbury to John Ward vppon condition of paymt of xxxiijli vis viijd [£33 6s. 8d.] the 29 (7) 1650. & the like summe the 29 (7) 1651. & since hath sould the sd fferme to Matthew Chaffe: The sd John Clarke doth assigne unto matthew Chaffe his now dwelling house in Boston wth the ground thereto appertaineing vppon this condition that if the sd John Clark do make paymt of the afore said summes to John Ward according to Covenant, that then this Assignment shall be void, otherwise the sd Matthew to enter & possess the sd house & ground to him & his heires fore [ever] This was by a deed dated 1 (3) 1649. & acknowledged before mr Bellingham 27 (9) 1649.

"At a Generall Corte of Election at Boston, the 2d of the 3d mo, 1649. . . . [Records of the Colony of Massachusetts Bay.]

May 10th following his petition was granted as follows:

"In answer to the petition of Charles Saunders ffor men to be appointed to apprize the tackling and other goods in & belonging to his shipp, that was blowne vp, so a certificate may be made to give satisfaccon to his owners, in England or elsewhere, his request was graunted; and Mathew Chase [Mathew Chafe] & Arthur Gill are appointed for that service." [Suffolk County Deeds, Liber I, page 113.]

He also owned land in Hingham, Mass., but when is not known. The will of William Hersey of that town, dated March 9, 1657–58, gives to his son William "ye Lott I bought of Matthew Chafey at ye Capts Tent" [now Hewitt's Cove].

The records of the First Church of Boston contain the last entry regarding Matthew and Sarah Chaffe, as they did the first:

"Oe Brother Mathew Chaffe upon his desire with his wife was dismissed ye 10th of 6 mo. 1655."

Whether Matthew and Sarah returned to England, or whether they settled in some other part of the country we do not know. We find no mention of any one else by the name of Chaffe in Boston at this early date, nor for twenty-five years after this last entry.

Whether or not Matthew and Thomas Chaffe, the Emigrant, were related we have no means of knowing. Both owned land in Hingham, but whether at the same time or not is unknown. The name Matthew does not appear in any of the earlier generations of Chaffe children, as would probably be the case were they related.

Thomas Chafey was born probably between 1756 and 1760, and died in Hornerstown, N. J., June 24 (20), 1828. He married there, the last of June, 1785, Sarah H., daughter of Joshua and Rachel Horner, her ancestors having founded Hornerstown. She was born April 7, 1766, and died April 26, 1842. Thomas Chafey enlisted in the Revolutionary army as a Private, from Monmouth County, N. J., in the spring of 1780, and served in the 1st Battalion, 2d Establishment, 1st Regiment, under Colonel Matthias Ogden and Captain James Mitchell, until the close of the war, taking part in the surrender of Cornwallis. He applied for a pension in 1818, being then, according to the record, about fifty-eight years old, and in 1820 about sixty-four. His widow applied for a pension in 1839. After the war he was a farmer in Hornerstown,where he died of dropsy. He is said to have been temperate and industrious. April 6, 1828, Fuller Horner was appointed administrator of his estate. Thomas Chafey and his wife are both buried in Zion Cemetery, Hornerstown, where the former's tombstone bears the following inscription:

"Thomas Chafey, A Revolutionary Soldier—Patriot—Gentleman."

[It is thought that this Thomas may be 316 descended from Joseph,[4] Joseph,[3] Joseph,[2] Thomas,[1] regarding whom nothing is known after his baptism, but no proof of this conjecture has been forthcoming so far.]

THE NAME OF CHAFFEE IN ENGLAND

DERIVATION OF THE SURNAME

From the Etymological Dictionary of Family and Christian Names, by William Arthur, M. A., published New York, 1857. Chaffee (Fr.) Chafe, to heat, to grow warm or angry, (Fr.) Chauffer, to warm, to cannonade, attack briskly.

The following is given in a book called The Norman People, which was published by Henry S. King & Co., of London, England, in 1874:

From page 184, "Cafe, or Chaff, from chauve, bald (Lower). Henry, Nicholas, Robert, Ranulph le Chauve, or Calvus, 1180–95, in Normandy (Mag. Rot. Scac). These names frequently occur in England, 13th century and later."

From page 193, "Chaffey or Chaffy, a form of Chafe or Chaff."

Combe. O. Fr.—That unwatered portion of a valley which forms its continuation beyond and above the most elevated spring that issues into it.

A deep valley where the sides come together in a concave form.

History of Somerset, by Reverend John Collinson. Published in 1791 at Bath by R. Cruttwel, Vol. 3, page 115.

CHAFFCOMBE

This is a small parish, situated in a pleasant valley near the borders of Chard common. The lands being cold and wet, are unfavorable to agriculture. In a narrow sequestered lane leading from this place to the parish of Crocket-Malherbe, a botanist would find entertainment, there being a great variety of ferns,—asplenia, and curious mosses. The purple digitalis flourishes here in high perfection. This parish contains about thirty houses, including a hamlet called Libnash, situated a mile southward from the church. The ancient name of this parish is Caffecome, which is compounded of the Saxon lay, sharp, and lomb, valley. In the Conqueror's time, it belonged to the Bishop of Coutances.

"The same Bishop holds Caffecome, and Ralph of him. Two thanes held it in the time of King Edward, and gelded for three hides and a half. The arable is three carucates. In demesne is one (carucate) and two villanes, and six cottagers, having one plough. There is a wood eight furlongs long, and as many broad. It is worth forty shillings."

"To this manor are added one hide, and three virgates of land. Two thanes held it in the time of King Edward for two manors. The arable is two carucates. These are held by three villanes. It is worth twenty shillings."

But in process of time this manor became a part of the honor of Gloucester, which extended itself throughout this county. Edward II, Hugh de Beauchamp, held one moiety, and Ralph de Stocklinch the other moiety of this village, each by the service of the third part of a knight's fee, of Gilbert de Clare, Earl of Gloucester. This Ralph de Stocklinch was seated at the neighbouring village of Stocklinch-Ottersey, which gave his family their name, and was held by them for many generations. In the account of that place in the first volume of this work, it was conjectured that it obtained its name from the family of Oterschawe, who were resident at a place now depopulated in the neighborhood of Isle-Abbots, in the adjacent hundred of Abdick. By other evidences it further appears that the said parish of Stocklinch was sometimes discriminated by the appellation of Stocklinch-Ostricer, and that the manor was held by the service of keeping an ostrum or hawk for the lord paramount thereof. 14 Ric. II. John Denbaud held at his death the manor of Stokelynch-Ostricer, with the advowson of the church, of the Earl of Huntington, as of his manor of Haselborough, by the service of keeping a hawk (ostrum) every year till it should be completely fit for service. And when the said hawk should be so fit, he was to convey it to his lord's manor-house, attended by his wife, together with three boys, three horses, and three greyhounds, and to stay there forty days at the lord's expense, and to have the lady's second best gown for his wife's work.

Villanes. The word villanes means common people.

THE SURNAME IN SCOTLAND, IRELAND, WALES AND FRANCE

The nearest approach to our surname in Scotland is that of Mac Haffie or Haffie.

William Chaffy appears among the "49" officers in Ireland in 1649 in the time of Charles I.

Robert Chafe received a grant of land in Ireland in 1668, time of Charles II.

In 1886 the surname did not appear in any of the city directories of Ireland.

The surname has not been found at all in Wales.

The surname has not been found in the directories of the principal cities of France.

The surname of Chouffet, pronounced Shufá, occurs there.

COATS OF ARMS

The descendants of Thomas Chaffe of Hingham, Mass., find no coat of arms connected with his surname.

There are coats of arms of the surname used in England, but neither these nor the one used by Reverend W. K. W. Chafy have been proven to be connected in any way with the surname in the United States.

"NEXT OF KIN"

In the third edition of Chambers Index to Next of Kin, by Edward Preston, published in London, England, appears the name of Richard Trenchard Chaffey in the list of heirs-at-law for unclaimed money in England. The author, Edward Preston, writes that this name was omitted in the fourth edition as it had only a transitory value.

DEVONSHIRE WILLS

An interesting article by Reverend W. K. W. Chafy, D. D., of Rous Lench Court, Evesham, England, from Devonshire Wills, by Charles Worthy, Esq., published in London, 1896, by Bemrose & Sons, is, by the kind permission of the Publishers, presented to the readers of this genealogy, that they might get a clearer idea of the earlier surname as found in England.

The Chafys of Exeter, Chafecombe, and St. Giles in the Heath

The Chafys derive their name from their ancient heritage, "Chafecombe," now Chaffcombe, near Chard, which is the "ceaf cumbe" (in English, the light or breezy valley) of the Saxon period, and which was held by their ancestor, Hugo the Thegn, or Thane, in the days of Ethelred "the Unready," and by his son, Raynald Fitz-Hugh, in those of Edward "the Confessor."

OLD CHURCH AT CHAFFCOMBE

SOMERSET COUNTY (SOMERSETSHIRE), ENGLAND

But although the Chafys can thus trace back with unerring certainty to a period long anterior to the Conquest, and so justify the assertion inscribed on the ancient tomb of one of them in Devonshire, as to his own identity with the "perantiqua" race of the Chafes of Chafecombe (see post, p. 326), yet they are not, paternally at least, of Saxon origin, which at once accounts for their continued possession of Chafecombe under Norman rule, for though their representative then nominally became sub-tenant under the Bishop of Coutance, he practically remained the owner of the land of his ancestors under the newly-devised feudal system. This was "Ralph Fitz-Reginald," the grandson of Hugo or Hugh, whose own names and those of his immediate posterity and their adoption of the Norman "Fitz" as expressive of their parentage, sufficiently prove that the long prevalent idea as to the "Saxon origin of the Chafecombe family" is as erroneous as the position of its earliest ascertained members in Saxon England is unique and interesting.

"Hugo," who is said by many of his English detractors to have been of "mean origin, and the son of a French churl," was the confidential adviser of Emma of Normandy, second wife of King Ethelred, and came to England in her train in the year 1002. It is a well-known historical fact that the constant incursions of the Danes, which marked that period, were secretly encouraged by the Queen, who detested the English and despised her husband, whom she had married purely from political motives. That her Norman follower was faithful to her, to her second husband, King Knut the Dane, and to her children, is shown by his retention of his property at Chafecombe under Saxons, Danes and Normans, and although King Edward the Confessor had suffered for some quarter of a century by the interpolation of the Danish dynasty, he evidently recognized the fidelity Hugo had evinced towards his royal mother.

With the title of Ealdorman, or Earl, Hugo was sent into the West very soon after the arrival of Queen Emma. He had secret instructions, which he seems to have followed implicitly, and which resulted in the siege of Exeter by Sweyn, to whom the garrison, under the command of Earl Hugo, capitulated August 19, 1003. The fortifications were demolished, the people were put to the sword, and the memory of the "Norman governor," who left with the besiegers, was long held in execration. Exeter was betrayed, says Hovenden, who wrote in the reign of Henry II, through "perjurium, et proditionem, Normanici comitis, Quem Emma Domnaniæ præficerat."

The term "Ealdorman" was subsequently supplanted by "Thegn," and we next hear of Hugo as "Thegn of Chaffcombe" during the reign of Ethelred, which continued until April, A. D. 1016. His son, Reginald "Fitz Hugo" is shown by the Domesday record to have been joint-owner of the "vill of Chaffecumbe on the day King Edward was alive and dead," that is to say, on January 5, 1065–66. He had also a separate manor in that parish, and other lands, quite independently of his joint holding. At the Norman conquest King William gave the whole of the Chafecombe property to his Chief Justiciary and powerful favourite, Jeffery, Bishop of Coutance, in Normandy, who, however, permitted "Ralph Fitz-Reginald" to succeed his father in the "whole township" as "sub-tenant." The latter's son, Robert Fitz-Ralph, succeeded to the lands held by his ancestor, Reginald Fitz-Hugh, and is described as "Lord of Chaffecumbe," and as holding lands of the King-in-Chief to the value of one knight's fee, in the reign of Henry I.

From the Black Book of the Exchequer, we learn that his son and successor, "Ranulph Fitz-Robert," owned the manor lands together with the town of Chafecombe and the perpetual advowson and right of presentation to the parish church in the following reign, and that the Lord of Chafecombe in the time of Henry II was Robert Fitz-Ranulph, who had a younger brother known as "Ranulph Fitz-Ranulph."

Robert, Lord of Chafecombe, had an only child, Agnes, who was "Lady of Chaffecumbe" in her own right. By her first husband, who bore the well-known Devonshire name of Avenel, she had two daughters, co-heirs, Emma and Margery. She married secondly one of the Justices in Eyre, John de Aure, and had by him a third daughter, Margaret, and a son, John de Aure, who died in his mother's lifetime and without issue.

The line of Emma of Chafecombe, the eldest co-heir, terminated with Idonea de Insula, her great-granddaughter, in the reign of Edward I. Margery had issue only by her second husband, Philip de Cantilupe, a family now maternally represented by Lord De La Warr, and well known in this county in connection with Broadhempston. Her son and heir, Balderic de Cantilupe, is mentioned in legal proceedings connected with the advowson of Chafecombe in 1275, being then in his minority. Margaret de Aure, the third co-heir, had two sons, John and Odo. They are also mentioned in law proceedings as late as the years 1294 and 1295.

Between these co-heirs and their representatives the lordship of Chafecombe seems to have become divided, although there was a certain amount of interpleading on the part of "Robert Fitz-Ranulph." The latter is the ancestor of the present race of Chafy and Chaffe; he was the son and heir of "Ranulph Fitz-Ranulph," already mentioned as younger brother of the Lord of Chafecombe and uncle of Agnes, the inheritrix of the property. His father had received, for his younger son's portion, "one carrucate of land in Chaffecumbe," as shown by existing documents. The son of Robert Fitz-Ranulph is especially noteworthy as being the first of the family who assumed a regular surname, which was, of course, derived from his property. As "Thomas Chafe" of Chafecombe, he was seized of land "of the inheritance of Robert, his father." He married Matilda, daughter of Andrew de Bosco (Anglice, Boys) of Knolle, Co. Somerset, and died in 1281. His widow recovered the custody of his son and heir, Thomas Chafe, against a certain cleric known as William de St. Esprit, in 1284.

This Thomas Chafe of Chafecombe married Christina, daughter and heir of Robert de Mandevill, youngest son of Geoffry de Magna Villa (Steward of Normandy in right of his mother, Margaret, daughter of Eudo Dapifer), by his wife, Rohesia, daughter of the Chief Justice of England Alberic de Vere. Geoffry de Magna Villa was the first Earl of Essex so created by King Stephen and confirmed by the Empress Maud. He was afterwards in rebellion against the King and plundered the abbeys of St. Albans and Ramsey; ultimately, during a raid on a Kentish castle, he was shot through the head with an arrow, having discarded his helmet in consequence of the heat of the sun. His granddaughter, Christina Chafe, seems to have been dowered with lands in Somerset, since known as Kingston Mandevill, and which were sold by her husband in or about the year 1310. She had two sons, the youngest being called Andrew.

The eldest brother of the last named left three daughters co-heirs, who divided the lands their father had held in Chafecombe about the middle of the fourteenth century. Their uncle, Andrew Chafe, who was seized of lands in Chafecombe, seems to have died at Bridgewater subsequently to 1375, and his son, Thomas Chafe, is the last of the family who is described as of Chafecombe. He was living at Bridgewater in 1405, and his son, John Chafe, who succeeded him there, had also land in Devonshire, on which he is shown to have paid subsidy. He was alive at Bridgewater in 1413. His son, John "Chafie," who fought at the Battle of Agincourt, left the property at Bridgewater to his son, also called John, who seems to have resided at Ilminster, and was the father of Richard "Chafy" of Sherborne, Dorset, who was also seized of the Somersetshire property in 1522, in which year he died.

This Richard "Chafy" had three sons, viz., John "Chafy" of Sherborne and of Holwell, Co. Somerset—the direct ancestor of the Reverend Dr. Chafy, now of Rous Lench Court, Co. Worcester; Richard "Chaffie" of Holwell, whose male line is extinct; and William "Chaffie" of Wellington, who also inherited property at Sherborne, and was the ancestor of the Devonshire branch of this ancient family. He had two sons, Robert and Nicholas. The latter's two younger sons, Peter and William Chaffe, acquired lands at Buckfastleigh, in this county, and were seized of them in the year 1660, and their name and race still flourish in that and neighbouring parishes.

The uncle of the said Peter and William, Robert Chaffe, resided in the parish of St. Petrock, Exeter, of which city he was mayor in 1568, 1575 and 1576, and he was also governor of the "Guild of Merchant Adventurers"—an important federation which was incorporated by Queen Elizabeth. His will, in which he mentions his birthplace at Wellington, was proved 13th August, 1580. He had been buried in the nave of Exeter Cathedral on 26th July. By his wife, Elizabeth Biggleston, he had five sons and two daughters. Of these Robert and George were both of Exeter, and were living there in 1605 and 1611; Richard, another son, was seized of land also in Exeter at his death, 12th May, 1596; and Thomas, the second son, resided in the parish of St. Olave, in the same city. He married Dorothy, second daughter of John Shorte, of the parish of St. Petrock. His will was dated 24th May, 1604, and at his death he owned the parsonage of Constantine and the tithes of St. Winnow, both in Cornwall. His eldest son, William, died without issue in 1604. John, the second son, married Anna Mayho (and was father of Thomas "Chafe" of Sherborne; admitted of the Middle Temple, June 25th, 1631, to whom I shall have again to refer). Thomas, the third son, was of Doddescot, in the parish of St. Giles on the Heath. Besides these sons there were four daughters—Pascha, of whom presently; Elizabeth, who married John Mules; Dorothy, wife of Robert Biggleston; and Richarda (marriage license dated February 1st, 1611, "to be married at Penhoe,") whose husband, Humphrey Curzon, then of London, merchant, afterwards resided in South Street, Exeter, in a house recently removed, and which was situated on the right hand side of the entrance to College Hall, and in which was a shield of the arms of Curzon: Arg. on a bend between 3 wyverns' heads sa. 3 martlets? Imp. Chafe, az. 5 fusils in fesse arg.

Between Thomas Chafe and his third sister, Pascha, there appears to have been a very strong affection; and it was, perhaps, on this account that he took up his residence at Doddescote, a property with which he had no apparent family connection. Pascha Chafe was the wife of Tristram Risdon of Winscot, the celebrated local antiquary, who, at the time of his marriage, 1608, had left Oxford, and had been at work upon his Devonshire History for three years. He does not appear at this time to have been particularly steady, or at all events during the few subsequent years, and did not succeed in acquiring the esteem of his mother-in-law, old Mrs. Chafe.

That lady made her will 23rd March, 1611, and was buried with her husband in St. Olave Church, 3rd October, 1612.

She describes herself as Dorothie "Chafe," widdowe, and leaves £5 to the poor of Exeter, and 5s. to the prisoners in the goal of the Castle. She states that her late husband, Thomas Chafe, by his will gave all his silver plate amongst his children, to be allotted and divided between them at her discretion; and this plate, which must have been particularly handsome and valuable, she proceeds to apportion as follows:—

She gives to her daughter, Elizabeth Mules, a tankard of silver double gilt, with cover belonging to the same, and a double gilt silver goblet. To her daughter, Dorothy Bigleston, a tankard of silver with its cover "pcell guilted," a goblet of silver double gilt, and six silver spoons.

The next bequest to her daughter, Pascoe Risdon, must have afterwards formed a portion of the family plate at Winscot, and is therefore specially interesting. She gives her a white silver tankard with its cover, a "goblet of silver pcell guilted, a little trencher salt of silver double guilted, and half a dozen of silver spoons, with apostles' heads."

To her daughter, Richarda "Curzane," who, as I have previously mentioned, seems to have resided in South Street, Exeter, she gives her second-best silver salt, double guilted, with its cover, an ale cup of silver, double guilt, a "little silver bowle," and half a dozen apostle spoons. To her son Thomas "Chafe," "a beere bowle of silver, a little ale cup of silver, and a little goblet of silver."

To her son John Chafe, she says, "I give during his natural life the use and occupation of my best salte of silver, double guilted, with the cover, a sack cup of silver, double guilt, and one white bowle of silver," with remainder to the son and heir of the said John, and in default to his eldest daughter.

Her son Thomas appears to have been the intimate friend of Tristram Risdon, and to have occasioned her no small amount of anxiety. He must have been much younger than Risdon, as the inscription on his tomb shows that he was born in 1585. He appears to have been educated for the law, and is described in the pedigree as a barrister; he took his degree at Exeter College, Oxford, but seems to have been both careless and extravagant, judging from the next paragraph in his mother's will.

After leaving him, in addition to the plate mentioned above, his father's gold signet ring and all his father's books, she adds: "Alsoe whereas the said Thomas my Sonne heretofore to my great greife and dislikinge, in Ryston's manner, hath most vainely wasted and consumed a farr greater porcion of my goods than my abilitie was or now is able to afforde him for his mayntenance, but now hath faithfully promised unto me reformacon and amendment of the same, therefore my will mynde and intent is, that if my said sonne doe nowe give over those his ill courses and practises wch he hath need with all other such lyke misdemeanors, and doth henceforth apply himself to learninge as he ought to doe, so as by reason thereof at the tyme of my death, by the opinion and judgment of my overseers hereafter named he shall be by them adjudged and thought worthie, uppon his amendment, and not otherwise, then I bequeath him £100 to be paid three months after my death." To this will her elder son, John, is executor, and administration was granted P. C. C., 3rd October, 1612.

The overseers were Philip Biglestone, her uncle, and Robert Chafe, her brother-in-law.

Whether Thomas Chafe reformed sufficiently to entitle him to the £100 I cannot say. He lived for many years subsequently at peace with his relatives, as shown by his own curious will, which bears date September 24th, 1648, and was proved P. C. C., 18th February, 1648-9.

He desires to be buried in decent and silent manner "some few hours before the candle doth inheritt the Suns office." He gives to the poor of St. Giles 20s., and to his wife a mourning gown, and "his bedsted with the greene curtains while she lives." To his niece, Mrs. Catherine Brookin, £20, and to her husband, Thomas Brookin, £5. He adds, "I would heartily acknowledge another niece, but her impious deserts deserve nothing for present but tears and prayers that she may prove second Mary."

He mentions his "dearly beloved" sisters, Mrs. Dorothy Biglestone and Mrs. Richard Curson. His nephews, Philip, John, and Thomas Biglestone, his cousin Peter, and his "gratious" cousin James Biglestone.

He also refers to his niece, Mrs. Dorothy Biglestone, and to his nephews, Thomas, John, and George Curson. He gives his niece. Mrs. Mary Serrell, £6 for a "momento," to his "virtuous" niece Mrs. Margaret Yeo 20s., and to her good husband 10s., and desires "their noble goodness to accept of my myte." There are bequests to his loving niece, Mrs. Joane Serrell, to his nephew, William Ryledon, and to his friends, Arthur Rolle and Thomas Baylis, "a little piece of plate with my arms thereon," for the purchase of which money is devised to his executor. He leaves his nephew's wife, Catherine, £1. 2s. for a ring with a death's head thereon, and he gives £40 to, and settles his plate upon, "my hopefull Godson and young nephew Thomas Chafe." He further requires his Exor. to inter his body "as neere as he can by my Sister Risedon, and I doe ordain appointe and require £30 rather more than lesse to be bestowed in a monument of my Effigies by my Executor, of whose love herein I am not diffident, who have reaped so many gratuities formerly from mee, and now in present burthening his conscience for effecting it as he shall answer Coram Deo. I desire him to inscript in my monument some memory of his good Aunt Rysedon, and of the family deceased there interred, also of my wife and her two children, no great onus to an ingenious, generous, and gratefull minde."

The executor and residuary legatee is his nephew, Thomas Chafe, Esq., councillor-at-law; and the will concludes with the following quaint words:

"This my last will and Testament written with mine own hande and soe well known that I do not greatly repute the subscription of Witnesses to strengthen it. And this my last will and Testament to corroborate and to make it legall I doe impresse my seale and subscribe my name the day and yeare above written.

" Vale T. CHAFE, Scripsi."

"Item vale T. C. Laws deo pax Hominibus.

T. Chafe de Doddescott."

In accordance with his uncle's injunctions, Thomas Chafe erected in the chancel of St. Giles, and within the altar-rails, a high tomb to the memory of deceased, with his effigy thereon. The figure, with moustache and peaked beard, is lying upon the right side, the face supported by the hand, the elbow resting upon a cushion. The costume consists of a coif or skull-cap which entirely conceals the hair, a short cloak with tight sleeves, and which being open in front shows that the body is protected by a cuirass, frequently worn in those troublous times, fastened down the front with studs; breeches and long stockings gartered below the knee with roses or knots, and on the feet are low shoes similarly decorated. There were also two female figures, who probably represented the two children referred to in the will. Over the figure are three coats of arms. In the centre the ancient, but questionable, arms of Chafe, already blazoned, with mantling and crest: A demi lion ramp. or, holding between its paws a fusil, az.

On the dexter side; Chafe impaling Burgoyne: Az. a talbot pass. arg. in chief a mullet.

And on the sinister side Risdon: Arg. 3 bird bolts sa., impaling Chafe.

During the "restoration" of St. Giles' Church, to which I have already alluded, this monument was taken down and removed from its original position to another part of the building. The two female figures then disappeared; and I understand that "they fell to pieces, and could not be put together again."

The inscription upon the front of the monument is as follows:

The spaces left blank for Margery Chafe's death have never been filled in. She was buried with her husband 30th March, 1655.

Thomas Chafe must have passed his sixty-second birthday, since he died in the year of his "grand climacteric" (which was 7x9), and therefore in his sixty-third year. The inscription actually gives the age as 47, which is obviously owing to a mistake of the stone-cutter, who failed to enlarge the letters "u" in "medicus" and "x" in "uxorem," had this been done, the age would have appeared correctly—62. I have made the necessary alterations above, in view of the fact that the inscription has become very faint, and unless the words are recut, they will speedily become almost entirely obliterated. Chafe's sister, Pascha, had predeceased him, although she survived her husband, Tristram Risdon, for about six years. Her will was proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, 10th September, 1647. It is dated April 21st, 1646, and in it she is described as "Pascoe" Risdon, of "Winscott," in the parish of St. Giles, and county of Devon, widow. She gives her son, William Risdon, "her heir and sole Executor," "the Manor of Winscott and the Barton farm & demesne thereof and all her other lands in Devon for ever." This bequest upsets the assertion of the authors of the additions to Risdon (p. 422, edit. 1811), who state that Giles Risdon (her eldest son, who had then been dead about two years) "inherited the estate after his father, and was succeeded by his brother William."

She gives her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Margery Risdon, two stocks of bees and her still. To "my daughter, Mrs. Joane Hearle, all my best woollen and lynnen apparel and my wedding-ring." To my grandchild, Margaret Rattenbury, £5 at sixteen years of age. Her daughter, Margaret, had died 26th of August, 1636, and her memorial inscription is given by Prince in the Worthies of Devon. She likewise leaves to her grandchild, Joane Hearle, "a bearing blanket and all my child bed linnen." There are also bequests to several of her god-children, and to John Maddcote, "godson of my husband, Mr. Tristram Risdon, deceased." The overseers are her nephew, Thomas Chafe, already mentioned, and her son-in-law, Mr. James Hearle.

William Risdon, of Winscot, the second son of the antiquary, proved his mother's will, and succeeded to the property at her death. He died in 1701, and was buried in St. Giles' Church with his family. He had one daughter, Mary, who by her first husband, John Prust, had one child, a daughter, who died in infancy. She was subsequently married three times—viz. to Amos Rolle, to John Holland, and to John Stafford—but had no issue by either of them, therefore Winscot ultimately descended to Joane, daughter of James Hearle and Joane his wife, the daughter of Tristram Risdon. This Joane, who by her grandmother's will is to receive "two bearing blankets," and other equally useful articles, became the wife of Edward Lovatt, of Corfe, in the parish of Taws Tock, who was the sixth son of Sir Robert Lovatt, of Liscombe, in Buckinghamshire. Her husband gave a large silver flagon to the church of Taws Tock. They had three children—Robert, who died without issue; Joan, who married Hatch; and Penelope, who was the wife of Sir Henry Northcote, M. D., the fourth baronet, and the present Lord Iddesleigh is now the representative of Tristram Risdon. Winscot, which descended in the Northcote family, has of late years become the property of the Hon. Mark Rolle.

Thomas Chafe, the executor of his uncle's will, was, as I have stated already, the son of John Chafe, and of his wife, Anne Mayho. He survived until 1662, married Katherine, daughter of Sir Thomas Malet, and left a son and six daughters. The son, also called Thomas, acquired property near Sherbourne, with his wife, Susanna Molyns, and went to reside at Folke. He was patron of the Rectory of Constantine, in Cornwall. The death of his only son, Molyns Chafe, S. P., in 1685, terminated the male line of this branch of the family.

Their ancestor, as I have already said, was William "Chaffe," of Wellington, who was the younger brother of John Chafy, of Sherbourne, who was buried at Stoke under Hamdon, 26th Sept., 1558. He was the father of Thomas "Chafye," of Sherbourne, whose grandson, "Robert Chaffie, of the same place, married Elizabeth, daughter and heir of William Hambridge, of East Coker, County Somerset, and niece and heir to Joseph Compton, of Yeovil. This William Hambridge was the second son of John Hambridge, of East Coker (who was twelfth in direct descent from Stephen de Hambrigge, Lord of Hambrigge, in Somerset, in the reign of Henry II), by his first wife, Joan, daughter and co-heir of William Hemenford. (He married, secondly, Katherine, daughter of Sir John Sydenham. Mrs. "Chaffie's" mother, Elizabeth Compton, ultimate heir to her brother Joseph, was sixteenth in descent from Walter of Compton, Co. Somerset, who held that property under the Bishop of Salisbury, at the time of the Domesday Survey, and whose younger great-grandson, Martin de Compton, gave name to an estate in Marldon, Co. Devon, and there founded Compton Castle, which, with the heiress of Compton, passed to the Poles, and thence to Doddescombe, and ultimately became divided between Worthe and Gilbert. Through this marriage, the Chafys, who already quartered the arms of Boys and Mandeville, obtained the right to add those of Hambrigge, Micheldever, Compton, de Alvâ, Newton, and Helpeston. Walter Chafe, of Sherborne, baptized there 28th December, 1653, was the grandson of the Compton heiress. He acquired the additional armorials of Scott, of Child-Okford, by his marriage with Ann Scott, heir to her brothers George and John Scott, of Sherborne. His son, John "Chafy," Rector of Lillingham, and of Purse Caundle, Dorsetshire, married Elizabeth, daughter and co-heir of Capt. John Corbyn, of Hazlebury Brian, and the direct descendant of Sir Philip Corbyn, Kt., of Corbyn, Co. Stafford, in the reign of Henry I, and thus acquired the quarterings of Corbyn, Brian (of Hazlebury Brian, Co. Dorset, temp. Hy. III), De Cancy, and Warren. The Heraldry of the House of Chafy became repeated by the marriage of the younger son of the last-named, the Rev. William Chafy, Vicar of Faversham and Sturry, and Minor Canon of Canterbury, with his first cousin's daughter Mary, daughter of John "Chafie," of Sherbourne; their eldest son, Dr. William Chafy (C. C. Coll., Cambridge, Master of "Sidney Sussex," and Vice-Chancellor of the University, Chaplain-in-Ordinary to her Majesty the Queen, and to her three royal predecessors), married, 4th Dec., 1813, Mary, daughter and co-heir of John Westwood, of Chatteris, in the Isle of Ely, and the descendant and representative of William de Westwode, who was seized of lands in Lek, County of Stafford, jure uxoris, 37th Hy. III. His wife, was the daughter and heir of Clement de Dysteley, by Matilda, daughter and heir of Robert Fitz-John, the owner of the said manor of Lek.

Doctor Chafy was buried in Sidney Sussex College Chapel in May, 1843. He died, universally respected and lamented, on the 16th of that month.

Doctor Chafy, of Rous-Lench Court, Worcestershire, is the eldest son by his first marriage with Annette, daughter of the Rt. Rev. Samuel Kyle, D. D., Lord Bishop of Cork, Cloyne, and Ross, of the only son of the Master of Sidney Sussex College, who died in 1873.

Doctor Chafy was baptized by the names of William Kyle Westwood, 17th July, 1841, and assumed the additional name of Chafy in pursuance of a too loosely worded claim in the will of his grandfather, from whom he inherited a small property at Haslebury Brian, some scattered fragments of Chafy property in Dorset and Somerset, and an estate at Sheriff's Lench, in Worcestershire.

He graduated at Christ Church, Oxford; was ordained deacon in 1869, and priest in 1870. He was subsequently for two years curate in sole charge of Lydford, in this County: for an account of the church of that parish, see my Devonshire Parishes, Vol. I, pp. 220–248. Dr. Chafy, who took his D. D. degree in 1891, married, 2d May, 1872, Mary Clara, the second daughter of the late Evelyn Philip Shirley, of Ettington, Co. Warwick, and Lough Trea, Co. Monaghan, the well-known author of the Noble and Gentle Families of England, of the History of the County of Monaghan, etc., and who was the great-grandson of the Hon. George Shirley, of Ettington, fifth son of the first Earl Ferrers, who terminated the abeyance of the ancient baronies of Ferrers of Chartley, Courchier, and Louvaine, his grandmother, Lady Dorothy Devereux, having been daughter and co-heir of Robert, last Earl of Essex, of the house of Devereux, from whom Mr. Shirley inherited his Irish property in Co. Monaghan. These baronies are now again in abeyance, between the representatives of the daughters of the eighth Lord Ferrers.

Doctor Chafy's son and heir, Hugh Edmund Chafy-Chafy, was born at Lidford Rectory, May 17, 1876. He has also a second son and four daughters.

The arms used for many centuries by this family, "azure, five fusils in fesse, argent, a canton of the last," and which surmount the tomb already referred to in the parish church of St. Giles in the Heath, have been superseded, since 1822, by Doctor Chafy's predecessors. In pursuance of an Earl Marshal's warrant in that year directed to the Kings of Arms, consequent upon the application of the Rev. W. Chafy, great-grandfather of the present owner of Rous-Lench, a coat, which satisfactorily marks the descent of the Chafys from Hugo, Thegn of Chafecombe, and his connection with the Saxon Earldom of Devon, the badge of which was a gryphon then, and down to the commencement of the third century after the Conquest, was granted to him and his heirs, and may be thus blazoned:—Per pale gules and azure, a gryphon segreant, argent; on a chief, engrailed erm., three lozenges in fess of the second Crest, on a mount vert, a peacock in its pride, between two palm-branches, all ppr.

ENGLISH AND CANADIAN LINEAGES

James Chaffey was born in Somersetshire, England, in 1747, and died in Indian Island, N. B., Canada, March 20, 1797. He married there, about 1774, Elizabeth, daughter of John Le Fontaine, or Fountain, as it became anglicized. She died September 10, 1829, aged seventy-five, and was buried in Indian Island.

James Chaffey's father was a resident of Somersetshire, England. He had twenty-one children, and besides James, one other son, a brewer by occupation, came to America, but not liking the country returned to England. James Chaffey learned the goldsmith's trade in London. The last Christmas before he sailed for America he dined at his father's table, surrounded by his twenty brothers and sisters. He embarked in a vessel bound for Boston, Mass., but after putting out to sea, the captain found that his sealed orders instructed him to go to the Coast of Guinea for a load of slaves. After getting their cargo of human beings, they once more headed for America, but a storm disabled their vessel, and leaving the slaves on the sinking ship, the passengers and crew were taken off by a passing vessel; James Chaffey said that the sinking ship, with its human cargo, was a heart-rending sight. The vessel landed her passengers in Philadelphia, Pa., and after a brief sojourn there, James Chaffey started for New England, and settled in Gouldsboro, Mass. (now Maine), where he engaged in trade. Soon after he went to Indian Island, where he entered into the fur trade with the Indians. He is said to have been the first white settler in that place, and his store and house were the first ones seen by the Passamaquoddy Indians in their own country. After living there for some years alone he was joined by a settler from Port Royal, John Le Fontaine, whose daughter he afterward married.

James Chaffey carried on an extensive and lucrative business in fish and fur; his fearlessness and integrity gained for him the respect of the Indians, and he gained great influence and power over them. It is told of him that during the Revolutionary War Colonel Allen sent a party of Indians to him to make him say he loved General Washington. Although he was ill in bed, and the Indians gathered around him with uplifted tomahawks and drawn knives, he refused to renounce his fidelity to his country, and the Indians left without doing him injury.

James Chaffey and his brother John did a large trading business with the West Indies, owning and controlling two vessels and two brigs. Owing to competition with American ports, the business of Indian Island with the West Indies grew less, and where it had formerly taken thirteen vessels to carry on this trade, at last there was only one, the brig Chaffey, to carry on what had once been a large and successful business. "Mr. John Chaffe, the senior member of the firm of John Chaffe & Sons, of New Orleans, died here in Minden, La., at the residence of his brother. He had been sick for some time of flux, and was thought to be better, but became worse and soon died.

"The deceased was born in Devonshire, England, and came to America just as he attained his majority. Obtaining employment on a farm on Staten Island, he studied at night and laid the foundation for the education which in after years served him so well. After spending some years on the farm Mr. Chaffe was employed to take charge of the business of a gentleman at Morristown, N. J. Continuing his studies, he soon mastered all that was essential to a thorough business education, and, declining offers in the North, he came to Louisiana in 1839 and established himself in business in Minden, in Webster parish. Here he made quite a fortune. When the war broke out he was appointed funding agent for the Confederate government, which position he filled to the satisfaction of that government. In 1865, when the war closed, Mr. Chaffe was called on to pay $20,000 to New York creditors. Although he had paid this amount to the Confederate government, Mr. Chaffe, with that strict sense of business integrity which had marked his entire life, paid the claim in full. After the war Mr. Chaffe came to New Orleans, where he established the cotton house of John Chaffe & Sons, which firm now occupies a high position in commercial circles.

"He was never an active politician, but in 1879 he was elected a member of the Constitutional Convention of the State.

"Upright, honest, kind and just, Mr. Chaffe enjoyed the esteem of all his business acquaintances and the love of his friends. At the time of his death Mr. Chaffe was a member of the National Cotton Planters' Association and Perfect Union Lodge, F. and A. M." [New Orleans Times-Democrat.]

"Sunday night towards midnight, at the residence of his brother, in Minden, La., Mr. John Chaffe, a well known merchant of this city, breathed his last.

"Mr. Chaffe had been sick just three weeks, and although his death was hourly expected for a number of days, he rallied to such a degree on Friday last that his family felt confident that he would recover. This hope, however, proved delusive.

"John Chaffe was a native of Devonshire, England, and was born on April 30, 1815, hence was 73 years old at the time of his death. He came to this country in 1836, landing in New York in June of that year. He went to work shortly after his arrival on a farm in New Jersey, but subsequently took charge of a business house in Morristown, where he remained several years.

"The gentleman whose business Mr. Chaffe managed in Morristown had large business interests in New Orleans, and from him the young man heard enough of the Crescent city to induce him to locate there. He consequently came to New Orleans and went to work in the grocery house of Van Rensalaer & Co. By energy and thrift he soon amassed sufficient means to start in business on his own account in the town of Minden, La. Here, in 1844, Mr. Chaffe married Miss Hamilton, daughter of Colonel William Hamilton of Macon, Ga. At Minden Mr. Chaffe's business prospered and at the breaking out of the war he was possessed of considerable property. Mr. Chaffe was too old to do active service in the field for the confederacy, but he served as a funding agent for the confederate government with fidelity and ability.

"After the war Mr. Chaffe located in New Orleans, and his house has been for years one of the leaders in the cotton trade of this city. Although a merchant,

Mr. Chaffe was also an extensive cotton planter, and besides owned several large sugar estates, hence was identified with all the leading industries of Louisiana.

"He was noted for his sterling integrity, and was universally popular in business circles.

"Mr. Chaffe was a member of the state constitutional convention of 1879, was a prominent member of the Cotton Exchange, and has been connected with a number of social organizations. He leaves six sons and three daughters to mourn his loss. His remains have been brought to this city, and his funeral will take place from Trinity church this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock."
